Captain Alexander Ramsay, William Reynolds Lisbey, the chief officer, and several of the crew, were examined as to the circumstances under which the vessel went ashore. The decision of the Court was as follows:—"The Court are of opinion that the barque Southern Cross was wrecked four miles west of Cape Douglas, on the morning of the 8th ultimo, through the vessel being eighteen miles north of her course, and the Penguin Island light having been mistaken for that of Cape Northumberland. They are also of opinion that there was gross neglect on the part of the boatswain and watch on deck in not having kept a proper look-out, and that the boatswain is also greatly to blame in having allowed so young a boy to be on the look-out."

The East Croft (Rimmer), for Sydney, put back to Gravesend on November 27, having been in collision with the Emilio Rodanina. The East Croft had mizen rigging, backstays, and poop rails carried away, stanchions started, and sustained other damage. The Emilio Rodanina, which also put back, lost her jibboom and head gear. The Japanese (says the Examiner), have completed their coast defences, and are only awaiting the construction of their fleet of gunboats before bringing matters with the Chinese to a crisis. Colonel Munier and Captain Choiret, of the French mission at Tokio, have expressed their opinion that the southern defences of Japan are all that could be desired, and that the Chinese would be unable to penetrate either the Simonoseki Channel or the Yedo Bay. The Mikado is displaying the greatest energy in perfecting his military forces, and has just concluded a contract with an English firm for the supply of 10,000 Martini-Henry breechloaders.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

MONDAY EVENING.

There was a stronger feeling in Bank stock to-day, and most of the sales reported in the Share market were investments of that character. Citys were dearer, £10 2s. to £10½ paid, 10½ asked; Commercial fully-paid changed hands at 90, and 92 asked, new issue had buyers at 60, sellers at 62; for Joint Stock, 13¾ was realized, 13¾ asked; Mercantile wanted at 4¼, held for 5¼; sales of New South Wales at 46¼, sellers at 46¾; and the market cleared of New Zealand at 18; Union had a great advance, 56 being paid, 58 wanted by holders; National of Queensland had sellers at 6¼, x. d. Steam shares steady: Australasian had buyers at 14¾, sellers at 15¼; Clarence and Richmond, fully paid, had sellers at 6; preferential, buyers, at 12; Hunter River wanted at 6, held for 7; Illawarra, buyers at 5, sellers at 6. Insurance shares were less in demand than they have been recently: Australian Fire or General not quoted; Accident not asked for, nor was there any inquiry for Mercantile; New South Wales had buyers at 46s., sellers at 49s.; Pacific offered at 49s., Sydney Fire at 57s., and no demand for either; Sydney Marine wanted at 27s. 6d., held for 30s.; United had buyers at 31s. 6d., held for 33s.; Gaslight shares steady—12 asked for old, 5 for new, buyers of both at 10s. less; Sydney Exchange and Pyrmont Bridge scarce; Shale Oil inquired for at 10s. 6d., held for 12s.; Volunteer Land Orders had buyers at 91, sellers at 94. Coal shares unchanged; Bulli scarce, buyers at 11½; Wallsend Coal not asked for, sellers at 15½; Waratah had buyers at 8½, sellers at 9. Great Cobar Copper advanced to 81s., sales; and 84s. was paid for Band and Albion Consols; Krohmann's offered at 4s. 6d., Star of Peace at 5s.; for Hustler's Great Extended, 5s. could have been obtained, and 1s. for Pups. New South Wales funded fours were stronger, sales at 91; fives also looking up; City of Sydney long dated sixes held for 103.

The Parramatta Gas Company has declared a dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum for the past half-year.

In the Import markets business was rather quiet. The advance in values has stopped speculation, and now buyers only take trade supplies. Flour moving in bakers' lots at late rates, say £12 to £13; stocks are not large, but every steamer from Adelaide and Melbourne brings more or less. The South Australian market is hardening, as lower freights are expected. From Christchurch we hear that the market was bare of old wheat, but the scarcity of tonnage to take new grain to Europe was expected to keep prices low. Candles are being pushed off at 7¾d. to 8¼d. Second-class brandies are in more demand, and prices firm at up to 8s. 9d. London circulars by the mail speak of great activity in brandy there, and a large business was being done in inferior. The news that phylloxera had appeared in Spain is confirmed, and great damage had been inflicted in Malaga, Gerona, Catalonia, and the Douro. The loss of port in the latter was estimated at 10,000 pipes. We hear of business being done in Queensland rum at about 2s. 1d. There was inquiry for galvanized iron, tinplates, and fencing wire, but the prices asked seemed more than buyers would give. Linseed oil is a shade weaker; kerosene steady at late rates. Rice continues salable at up to £23 10s., with small stocks, but supplies coming forward from Melbourne, and also a shipment from China to land ex Torres Straits mail steamer. The fact that the cargo of Mauritius sugar, ex Lois, is to be offered under the hammer on Wednesday, will tend to make buyers await that opportunity of replenishing stocks. Late news from Port Louis indicates that this cargo was included in the quantity reported by telegraph as having been cleared for this port during the month. Up to December 5, there was nothing loading at Manila for Sydney, and only the Maria, for Melbourne, with a cargo of hemp. The high price asked there for sugar had caused buyers to withdraw from the market. No. 7 D. S. was quoted at £19 8s. 2d., No. 10 at £22 16s. 3d.; taal had risen to 3·37½ dollars per picul; hemp in short supply, and firm at £29 16s. 11d. Australian coals worth 7½ dollars per ton; Exchange, 4s. 0¼d. per dollar. The Twee Vrienden was loading sugar and rice at Java for Melbourne when the mail left on January 1st, and there was great demand for tonnage to the colonies, but vessels were very scarce, and finding employment at 60s. to 67s. 6d. per ton for Europe, freights tending lower. Rice very scarce. Sugar nominal, all last crop having changed hands. Coffee quiet at 61 to 63 florins for W. I. preparation. The local produce markets this morning were more lightly supplied than they have been for several days, and there was a better attendance than of late. Business showed a perceptible improvement. The demand was considerably strengthened, and a brisk competition kept the prices fully up to late levels. Oaten hay in bundles was in demand, and prime parcels brought from 5s. to 5s. 9d. Truss hay also showed an animated front, and several likely-looking trucks changed hands at 5s. 9d., while little passed at less than 5s. Sheaves were more quiet, ranging from 3s. 6d. to 3s. 9d., and bale hay was moderately active, realizing from 4s. 3d. to 4s. 11d. For bright green samples of lucerne there was brisk competition, and best lots, both in trusses and bales, were worth up to 4s. 5d. One truck of old oaten hay in trusses of excellent quality was disposed of at 5s. 4d. Chaff was scarce, and that offering not being of first-rate quality did not realize more than 5s. 6d. Straw was still very firm, bright samples bringing up to 4s.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Mercantile Mutual Insurance Company held to-day, Mr. J. Pope in the chair, the report was adopted, and the changes proposed in the deed of settlement carried, on motion by Mr. Hardie.

Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin's wool sale today was as largely attended as those held earlier in the season, and the disposition to buy equally strong. The quantity sold by auction, with some private sales, made up a total of 1904 bales. Low and medium lots commanded more attention, and prices seemed rather better. Fine wools were scarce, and likely to remain so until next clip comes in. Fleece sold at 16d. to 17½d. for good; 13d. to 15½d. for medium good; greasy, 9d. to 11d.; medium, 6½d. to 8½d.; good scoured, 18d. to 20½d.; medium, 10d. to 17d. Amongst the sales were:—Fleece: WK over D, 25 bales at 16½d.; P in circle, 15 at 16½d.; TPL, 99 at 18d.; JB, 21 at 14d. Greasy: G&FB, 36 bales at 11d.; Curry Flat, 84 at 8d.; AF, 50 at 8d.; TN, 15 at 10d.; EJ, 22 at 9½d.; Saxon, 28 at 9d.; MUM, 77 at 9½d.; JH over B, 90 at 9½d.; Walker's Hill, 60 at 9½d.; B, 50 at 10d. Scoured: T&R, 10 bales at 19½d.; FU, 6 at 20½d. Sheepskins in short supply, and sold at prices quite equal to those obtained recently.

Mr. J. C. Neild has been appointed Sydney agent for the Lion Fire Insurance Company of London.

The Smyrna has cleared for London with 5706 bales wool, 7147 ingots copper, 511 cakes copper, 50 bales leather, 7300 horns, 3 cases beeswax, 8 casks jewellers' sweepings, 22 cwt. hoofs, 5 tons 12 cwt. bones.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY, 3, 1880.

There are two points in connection with the electoral facts and figures published in Thursday's Herald which seem worthy of notice. One of these is the question of possible over-representation. In the Imperial Parliament there is one member for every 4486 electors. In our Assembly, under the bill now before the country, there would be one member for every 1717 electors. But, as the number on the rolls always largely exceeds the number who actually take part in the elections, there would probably be a member for every thousand electors who felt interest enough in public affairs to go to the polling booths. Admitting that, within certain limits, it is desirable at present to increase the numerical strength of the Assembly, and that representative institutions have a better chance of being worked efficiently with large Chambers than with small ones, it may be asked whether it would be wise to endeavour to keep up the proportion of members to electors, proposed by the bill, in perpetuity. In England the House of Commons is so large a body as to be in some respects unwieldy and unmanageable. But the system is worked there on the understanding that debate must be limited, and that the rank and file cannot be expected to talk always, and upon all subjects. With us, members have a tendency to regard it as a shrinking from duty to give "a silent vote." There, in the great majority of cases, it would be a breach of duty to break silence. The mere number of members is not therefore so great an impediment to the progress of business there as it would be here, unless the habits of thought and action of colonial representatives underwent a change. In England the proportion of members to electors is not likely to be increased. The reduction of the county franchise, by increasing the number of electors, would diminish it. The introduction of that change, when it comes, will involve a redistribution of the representation. But here the franchise is as low and as wide as it can be (unless the political distinction between the sexes be abolished), and the electoral rolls should be enlarged year by year by nearly the whole annual increase of the adult male population. It is conceivable, therefore, that we might have a rapid and inconvenient growth in the number of members if it were determined to preserve in perpetuity the same ratio of members to electors which is shown by the schedules. In one sense the self-adjusting scheme of the bill adopts a different ratio. One-member constituencies must have three thousand electors before they become entitled to an additional member; and the two-member constituencies named in the bill must have five thousand electors before they can claim to return three members. And this might be interpreted as an admission that an allotment of members which gives an average of one to every 1717 electors is excessive, or that it rests upon a calculation which could not safely be maintained en permanence. On the other hand, it may be said with equal truth that, as the self-adjusting scheme would give two members to a constituency of three thousand electors, and three members to certain other constituencies on their obtaining five thousand electors, it lays down the ratios of 1 to 1500 in the one case, and 1 to 1666 in the other, both being greater than the average proportion under the schedules. Probably the practical result of the system would be to establish the proportion under the schedules as the standard, for there would always be some electorates working up towards an increase, and others that had passed the stipulated points of 5000 and 3000. The question then is whether we can always provide one member for every 1700 electors, or one for every thousand actual voters. It may be wise to increase the number of members now; but is it wise to affirm in effect that the number shall go on increasing in order that every thousand electors who go to the polls may be able to send a member to Parliament?

Another point that suggests itself is the relation of the representation to taxation on property or income. It has been shown that in England there is one member returned for every £15,463 of income-tax. But by whom is the income-tax paid? By the hundreds or by the thousands? The fact is that the thousands escape, whilst the hundreds have to bear the burden of this impost. Let it be admitted that they ought to bear it. But does it not follow that they should have some proportionate share of electoral power because they bear it? As it is, so long as they form the hundreds, whilst those who escape the tax form the thousands, the power is in the hands of the majority, the minority are practically disfranchised, and there is taxation without representation. The principle that there should be no taxation without representation is not here disputed; but it is only a half truth shorn of logic and equity, if it does not imply that there should be some sort of proportion between the share of representation and the amount of taxation upon which the claim to representation is founded—between the contribution to the common funds of the State and the electoral influence by which the expenditure of those funds is ultimately governed. The payment of income-tax ought to be one very good test by which to regulate the distribution of the representation; but, in order that it may be regarded as an equitable test, there should be a special right to vote resting upon the payment of income-tax. The improvident, the spendthrift, and the proletariat classes can only be taxed through their consumption of dutiable goods. Whilst they are so taxed they have a right, on the principle before mentioned, to a share in the representation. But they have not a right to monopolise the representation by receiving credit for the taxation contributed by other classes. The owners of property are also taxed through their consumption, and so far stand upon the same level. But if taxation and representation go together, they should not only be compelled to pay a higher rate of taxation on account of their property and their interest in good government which provides for its protection; their larger contributions to the general revenue should carry with them a right to a larger share in the representation, at least to such a share as would ensure for them direct influence, and relieve them from the risk of being clamoured down by the voices and crushed by the weight of overwhelming numbers. We shall come to that some day, when the representative system is worked upon scientific and equitable principles.

To those who suffer from the law's delay it is somewhat of a disappointment to find that the Government has not included, in its programme for the session, any allusion to the important subject of judicature reform. An old proverb says that "new brooms sweep clean," and there was some reason for hoping that the new ATTORNEY-GENERAL would be ambitious of signalising his advent to office by doing what so many of his predecessors have left undone. In speaking to his constituents, however, after his re-election, he made no allusion to this kind of work as lying before him, and in the vice-regal speech which opened the session of Parliament, the subject of law reform was also conspicuous by its absence.

If the work to be done were altogether new, and there were no models to go by, it would be easy to understand how any Attorney-General should shrink from so arduous a task. But all the laborious part of the duty has already been done by others. Thanks to the labours of lawyers in England, judicature reform is an accomplished fact, and thanks to the labours of lawyers in other colonies, this reform has been adapted to colonial circumstances and requirements. But while other countries move on, New South Wales remains stationary. What real necessity is there that we should still continue the lumbering practice of having two separate Courts, one of law and one of equity; sometimes supplementary to each other, and sometimes rivals? And how long are the admitted imperfections and abuses of the equity system to remain unmodified?

In the absence of any action by the Government something is being attempted by individual energy. Mr. FARNELL has a Committee to inquire into the defects of the Court of Equity. But the inquiry can only find out what all who have had dealings with that Court know already, and can only point out that what ought to be done is, to imitate reforms which have already been adopted elsewhere. Mr. DARLEY has a bill before the Legislative Council, which, if carried, will remedy some abuses. But it does not pretend to be more than palliation, and is simply brought forward as a step in the right direction, pending a thorough judicature reform. The whole question is one which demands the initiation of the Government, in order to be done properly.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL has, no doubt, plenty to do, and his department is not overstaffed. But it would not be difficult to go outside the office, and find some competent lawyer who would put into shape the measure that is required; and if a bill carefully prepared on the responsibility of a competent person were submitted to the Legislative Council, it would receive there a thorough revision, and would go forward to the Assembly with an amount of authority in its favour which would probably induce that body to accept it.

The two great leading ideas in the reform are the fusion of law and equity, and the simplification of all legal proceedings. These ideas and this practice are now familiar in England, and it is time they were equally familiar here. In a recent decision of the Court of Appeal in England, which rejected rights claimed by one of the Vice-Chancellors of the Chancery division of the Court, the judgment stated that it "certainly seemed to be running counter to the idea of fusion which is at the bottom of the Judicature Act, if it were held that that which is impossible in the Common Law division of the High Court were possible in the Chancery division." This shows that the idea of the bifurcation of right is melting away in the old country, and that the notion that what is equitably right may be legally wrong, and what is legally right may be equitably wrong, is becoming an intellectual fossil.

At the Metropolitan Quarter Sessions, last week, JAMES SINGLETON and JAMES NICHOLSON were charged with attempting to personate at the late election of a member for East Sydney. The former was convicted, and the latter pleaded guilty. SINGLETON was liberated on his own recognizances of £40 and one surety of £40, to appear when called upon to receive sentence. And, according to the report, "this course was followed, as it was only desired now to let this case act as a warning. If prisoner were found doing anything of the kind again, he would be called upon to receive sentence for this offence." The other personator was treated in a similar manner. It is not very easy to see how the praiseworthy desire expressed by the District Court Judge is to be accomplished by this method of procedure. In ordinary life persons who are disposed to do wrong are warned by seeing others who do wrong fall into trouble. Mere threats and cautions are of little force as compared with sharp suffering. It is the burnt child who shuns the fire; the child that has the rod shaken over his head yet does not feel it acquires a contempt for the instrument. Besides, when these two offenders were warned that if they offended a second time they would be punished for their first offence, there was practically an intimation to everybody else that the luxury of personating an elector might be indulged in the first time with impunity. Personation, there is too good reason to believe, is a common offence; and the least that Courts of justice can do, in the interest of the public, is to use firmly the power the law gives them to suppress it, whenever a personator is caught and convicted. Why should there be any hesitation upon the point? The law against personation is not a new one. There is nothing to palliate or mitigate the offence. A man cannot personate another by accident. He cannot, like some who have embezzled money, commit the act under temporary pressure with intent to make restitution shortly afterwards. He must go out of his way to do it, and do it deliberately, and a deliberate breach of law like that should be punished whenever a conviction is obtained. The great defect in our administration of justice is uncertainty. When there is doubt as to punishment following conviction, criminals are encouraged to laugh at the law, not warned against breaking it. Crime will not be put down by sounding words and weak action.

The effect of a little judicious frankness is sometimes remarkable. During the course of the debate respecting the proposed legalization of the totalizator, Mr. Terry's declaration, that betting ought to be put down, elicited from Mr. Cameron the interjection "You bet yourself." Mr. Terry was apparently not in a position to deny the soft impeachment, and for the instant his position was invidious. He had apparently been caught in the act of fulminating against a habit which he practised. Such a situation is generally regarded and felt to be embarrassing. But in this instance a happy inspiration extricated the victim, and turned the tables upon the assailant. He changed ground with a dexterity truly admirable, and executed with success that notoriously difficult operation, a flank movement in the face of an enemy. Perceiving that his situation as a private individual was decidedly untenable, he adroitly shifted his attitude and assumed high and commanding moral ground as a member of the Legislature, from which elevation he was able, with considerable ease, to discomfit the astonished aggressor. "What he did," Mr. Terry declared, "was not the question. As a Parliament, they were legislating for the good of the country." The moral is not a new one. It is but, in a slightly altered form, the old admonition of the preacher—"Do as I tell you, not as I do." Only the application and the place were new. The public has not been accustomed to look to Parliamentary debates for garlands of moral maxims. But, seriously considered, Mr. Terry's precept is worthy of respect and attention. There are, it is to be hoped, few men whose principles are not superior to their practice. Had Mr. Cameron meant to convey that members of the Assembly ought to give their votes and voices in favour of the continuance of any vicious or mischievous practice which they had personally been unable to shake off despite the promptings of conscience and intelligence, he would have deserved the reproof which Mr. Terry's repartee conveyed. The duty which a man owes to himself is a serious affair, but when he is placed in a representative position he undertakes enlarged obligations, and it is of the first importance that he should recognize the necessity of separating from his public acts and arguments the influence of his personal shortcomings.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The revolutionary party in Russia is still at its nefarious work. One of our cable messages of this morning reports a conflict between a number of Nihilists and the police. The latter were sent to arrest a large number of Nihilists, when their authority was resisted, a fight ensued, and several persons were wounded. Arrests continue to be made. This fact, coupled with a statement published in papers just received by the mail, that 30,000 "suspects" have been imprisoned and transported during the past few months, affords evidence of the determination of the revolutionists. From South America comes some news of the war between Chili and the allied powers Bolivia and Peru. Chili is profiting by her recent successes on sea and on land, and at present has evidently the upper hand. Her ships are blockading the Peruvian coast. The unofficial interference of Great Britain is, however, being looked to as a means of stopping the war.

Mr. John Pender, M.P., chairman of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company, has forwarded the following cablegram to the Press of Australasia:—"Now that telegraphic communication between Australia and the other civilized centres of the world is made more certain by the duplication of the cable, I hope that the Press will freely use this great facility for bringing the colonies, the mother-country, and her other great and extended dependencies into closer union and ever-increasing harmony. The cable is now laid to South Africa; and I beg to thank the Australian colonies for enabling my company to serve the Imperial Government at a critical juncture, by allowing that cable to be completed before the Australian cable, now happily laid within the time originally fixed."

A number of gentlemen interested in the proposal to recognise the presence of Professor Reuleaux (Commissioner for the German Empire), and other foreign Commissioners in this city, by inviting them to a public dinner, met at the Town Hall yesterday afternoon. The Mayor presided, and stated that Mr. Jennings (the Executive Commissioner), and Mr. J. Davies, M.L.A., had waited upon Professor Reuleaux, with the object of tendering that gentleman a complimentary banquet. Professor Reuleaux had sent a written reply addressed to the Mayor, Mr. Jennings, and Mr. Davies, in which he stated that he accepted with thankful feelings the invitation with which he had been honoured. He stated that, according to his principles, he did not wish to be singled out from his fellow Commissioners, who had all worked as hard as he had tried to do, to make the Exhibition a success. Therefore, in reply to the invitation, and as he had been given the choice, he desired to say that he would prefer being invited to a public dinner in conjunction with the other foreign commissioners on the occasion of his leaving this city. If the gentlemen who had initiated this movement would agree to this proposal this renewed act of hospitality on the part of the citizens would give him an opportunity of expressing the deep feelings of thanks for the friendship shown towards his country by the manner in which he had been received in his capacity as Commissioner. It was decided by the meeting to appoint Mr. J. Davies and Mr. Augustus Morris joint secretaries; and Mr. P. A. Jennings, treasurer, and an influential committee were appointed, with power to add to their number. It was decided that the banquet should take place on the 12th instant, and that it should be held, if arrangements could possibly be made upon such short notice, in the Town Hall. A meeting of the committee will be held this afternoon.

Many of our readers will recollect the romantic story of Hume, whilst a prisoner in Parramatta gaol, respecting his travels in the far west, of his long association with black tribes, and his discovery of traces of the long lost explorer Leichhardt, whose disappearance is still enshrouded in mystery. The undoubted knowledge which Hume possessed of the interior of Australia, and the statements he made, led to his release from prison, and his equipment for a journey of exploration in the west, in quest of evidence of a substantial nature in support of his story. But ere he had got well on his travels he died. The story he told of a white man, supposed to be Classen, who was one of Leichhardt's ill-fated party, living with a tribe of blacks, and of half-caste children, and the discovery of relics of Leichhardt was believed by many. And the hope of one day obtaining evidence of the fate of Leichhardt has never been entirely abandoned. Mr. E. Du Faur is one of those who took a deep interest in Hume, and who was instrumental in obtaining for him his freedom, that he might procure the relics he had spoken of, and obtain information as to what had become of the white man. Lately Mr. Du Faur has received letters from Mr. B. Dawson, of Curran station, Gwydir, which contain corroborative evidence of the truth of poor Hume's story, and which serve to strengthen the belief that in regard to the statements he made of his having discovered traces of Leichhardt's party he was not an impostor. These letters we publish in another column, and they will no doubt be read with considerable interest.

Subscriptions to the Irish Famine Relief Fund are still flowing in. £2000 was received by the Central Committee in Sydney on Saturday, and several amounts were sent in yesterday from various parts of the colony. It was stated at the meeting, yesterday morning, that £9500 had been sent from this colony to Dublin; and the chairman intended, in the course of the day, to remit another £2000, which brings up the total amount already sent home to £11,500.

A meeting of the City Council will be held at the Town Hall this morning, at 11 o'clock. Reports will be considered, and a number of motions have to be disposed of. Alderman Taylor wants the price of water, as supplied by meter, to be reduced from 2s. 6d. and 2s. per 1000 gallons to 1s. 6d. per 1000 gallons; Alderman Hordern wishes for information as to the cost of works at the Town Hall; and Alderman Hardie wishes to have a deputation appointed to wait upon the Colonial Secretary, asking for the introduction of a bill to enable the Council to raise a loan on debentures redeemable in 1900, and to provide for a sinking fund.

We have to acknowledge the receipt of a small pamphlet entitled "The Abolition of Zymotic Diseases" by Sir Thomas Watson, Bart., M.D., F.R.S. The author recommends "the unfailing and immediate notification to the proper authorities of the occurrence of every case; second, the instant isolation of the sick person; third, the thorough disinfection of his body clothes, furniture, and place of isolation; fourth, vigilant and effectual measures to prevent the importation of disease from abroad, and to strangle it should it by mischance return." He believes that by the adoption of these means zymotic diseases would become things of the past.

We have received a bagatelle, "The Happy Land Polka," well constructed and very easy, with more music in it than is often found in more pretentious pieces. The printing is very good, equal to European work. The title page contains portraits of the three notorious personages to whom reference is made in the satire from which the title is taken, but contrary to the general custom the likenesses are unmistakable, and one of them at least flatters the original. Messrs. Nicholson and Ascherberg are the publishers. The same firm has also sent a copy of the third edition of the Christmas number of the Australian Musical Magazine, which certainly contains a capital collection; the first song, by Abt, "The Bonnie Blue Forget-me-not," is quite worth the price of the whole. There are ten other songs, and four pianoforte pieces. The style of the third is quite equal to that of the first edition.

Some very light showers of rain fell at intervals yesterday. The weather had an unsettled appearance, though the barometer indicated that it would be fair. Nearly all the telegraph stations reported fine weather yesterday afternoon. At 3 o'clock it was showery at Ballina, Casino, Clarence Heads, and Kempsey; and at 8 o'clock, it was likewise showery at Kiama and Bateman's Bay. The prevailing winds on the coast were from north to north-east, blowing fresh; and there was a moderate sea.

The balloting for the election of directors of the Benevolent Asylum took place at an adjourned meeting yesterday, and resulted in the return of Messrs. John E. Begg, James Henry, George Myers, Frank Senior, John Starkey, Henry Hicks, and N. J. Mackenzie.

The Quarter Sessions were resumed yesterday morning, at the Court-house, Darlinghurst, before his Honor Judge Wilkinson, Mr. Rogers prosecuting for the Crown. Several jurors were fined for non-attendance. Cornelius Riordan, charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm upon one Donald Bradley, was found not guilty, and discharged. Samuel Keep, charged with depositing night soil near the head of Shea's Creek, thereby committing a nuisance, pleaded guilty, and was bound over in his own recognizances for £50 to appear when called upon to receive sentence. John Jones and Henry Elvy, were found not guilty of breaking and entering the Imperial Hotel, at Newtown, and stealing therefrom four dozen bottles of ale and porter, and discharged. David Joseph Newton, was found guilty of a uttering a document bearing a forged signature, purporting to be that of the Deputy Register-General, and was sentenced to two years hard labour in Darlinghurst gaol. Joseph Meiage, an old New Caledonian convict, was found guilty and sentenced to three years imprisonment with hard labour in Darlinghurst gaol, for stealing £18 in English money, and 1100 francs French money belonging to one of his country women who was staying at a boarding-house in Pitt-street. The Court then adjourned till this morning at 10 o'clock. The remaining cases will be disposed of to-day.

The Royal Commission appointed to inquire into and report upon the actual state and prospect of the fisheries of this colony is now sitting for the purpose of collecting evidence. The Commission will be glad to receive information from any person acquainted with the subject of inquiry and invite evidence from any one desirous of being examined. Some of the points on which information is sought are the localities where the various fishes are chiefly found, their mode of capture, their times of spawning, their places of spawning, the mode of attachment of spawn, where and when the young fry are seen, the enemies of the spawn, observation of shoals, &c., migrations of fishes, and modes of increasing and protecting fisheries.

A crowded meeting was held in the Guild Hall last night, under the auspices of the Trades and Labour Council, "to protest against the £76,000 now on the Estimates being appropriated for immigration purposes, and to call attention to the depressed state of the labour market." The meeting passed unanimously a resolution affirming that the state of the labour market and the financial condition of the colony were such that the appropriation of £76,000 for the purposes of immigration is unjust to the labouring classes, and inimical to the best interests of the colony. A second resolution, empowering the chairman to sign the foregoing resolution and forward it to the Colonial Secretary, was also unanimously agreed to. A vote of thanks to Mr. Cole, the president of the Trades and Labour Council, closed the proceedings.

The committee appointed to obtain funds for procuring a portrait in oil of his Excellency Sir Hercules Robinson, met yesterday afternoon, in the office of the Executive Commissioner of the International Exhibition. Sir Alfred Stephen occupied the chair, and Messrs. R. B. Smith, M.L.A., J. Alger, C. H. Hayes, and Alderman C. J. Roberts were present. The proceedings were principally of a conversational character, and it appeared from them that the only matter to be determined now is the selection of an artist sufficiently qualified to produce a first-class likeness. Sir Hercules Robinson, in response to inquiries from the committee, has written a suggestion to the effect that, as it would be impossible for him to visit England and possibly this colony until his present governorship has expired, the portrait should be taken in New Zealand. This suggestion appeared to meet the views of the committee, and it will no doubt be adopted if circumstances favourable to effect being given to it transpire. The illuminated address to his Excellency it was arranged to leave in its present position in the Garden Palace until the Exhibition has terminated, when the necessary signatures will be attached to it, and it will be appropriately bound and forwarded to its destination. The committee have adjourned for a fortnight for the purpose of completing their arrangements with respect to the portrait.

Mr. Henry Copeland, member for the Northern Goldfields, has almost recovered from the severe accident he met with two or three weeks ago, and it is hoped that he will be able to resume his Parliamentary duties in a few days.

A vocal society is about to be formed in Petersham, and preliminary steps will be taken at a public meeting to-morrow, presided over by the Mayor (Mr W. H. Pigott). Mr. J. Churchill Fisher is expected to accept the post of conductor, and Mr. E Lewis Scott is honorary secretary pro tem. Petersham is musically progressing, and already has a very creditable brass band, which, under the leadership of Mr. Douglas, played an excellent selection of popular melodies on Saturday afternoon, at the cricket ground. Only three months old, this band has made great strides; and its new uniform is neat and will often be looked for on Saturdays.

A very pleasant and interesting event took place on Saturday last, at the works of the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, Pyrmont, the occasion being the 21st anniversary birthday of Mr. F. W. Poolman. The employees having assembled in the new store, on the appearance of Mr. Poolman three hearty cheers were given. Mr. Dickey, on behalf of his fellow workmen, in a few appropriate remarks, read an address, and presented a very chaste gentleman's dressing-case, also a silver card-case, as a souvenir of their regard. Mr. T. Poolman returned thanks in well-chosen words, and invited all present to drink his health. After numerous expressions of good feeling, the company dispersed with three times three for Mr. Poolman, manager.

On Sunday afternoon the new Presbyterian Church, Botany, the foundation-stone of which was laid by the Rev. Dr. Fullerton on the 27th of last September, was opened for worship with a religious service. The Rev. Dr. M'Gibbon presided, and preached an impressive and appropriate sermon. The Rev. Principal Kinross, B.A., offered the dedicatory prayer. The Rev. T. J. Curtis, minister of the united charge of Redfern, Waterloo, and Botany, also took part in the service. Mr. Alexander Geddes ably presided at the organ (he having lent his own instrument for the occasion), and led an efficient choir of singers from St. Silas' and other Churches, who had kindly consented to assist. The edifice, which presents an exceedingly elegant and substantial appearance, was thronged to overflowing with worshippers, including, besides the congregation, representatives of the whole community in the suburb, and a number of visitors from Sydney, Redfern, &c. A good collection in aid of the debt on the building was taken up. It was announced that a second opening service will be held at the Church next Sunday afternoon, when the Rev. Dr. Steel will preach, and the same sacred music will be sung. Dr. M'Gibbon pronounced the benediction.

The annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was held in the Rooms on Friday evening last. Mr. J. H. Goodlet occupied the chair, and, before commencing the proceedings, explained that the ballot which had been taken for the election of the officers for the current year was informal, not having been conducted as provided by the constitution, and was, therefore, void. Subsequently, nominations were made, including those already made, and it was decided that a fresh ballot for office-bearers should take place at the Rooms on Friday next, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., at which time the adjourned meeting will be held.

A well-attended public meeting of the inhabitants of Balmain, was held in the Oddfellows' Hall, last night, in support of the Public Instruction Bill now before Parliament. Mr. James Macdonald, Mayor of Balmain, occupied the chair. A resolution was unanimously agreed to, according the measure the earnest support of the meeting, and a petition in favour of its adoption by the legislature was drawn up for presentation to Parliament.

A lecture was delivered at St. John's school room, Parramatta, last night, by Mr. Alexander Gordon, on Education, and the maintenance of Denominational schools. The Rev. Canon Gunther presided. The room was crowded by persons of various denominations, and at the close of the lecture a petition was read, which is to be presented to the Legislative Assembly, in favour of maintaining Denominational schools. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

A correspondent signing himself "Spectator," calls attention to the new postal card system that has been adopted in America. He thinks our post-office authorities might follow the example set us by our trans-Pacific friends. The system he refers to is thus briefly described:—"An American postal innovation is the new two-cent postal card. It has two stamps, one at each end, and spaces for two messages. The sender, who desires information valuable to himself, instead of enclosing a three-cent. stamp in a letter requiring another three-cent stamp, occupies one of the spaces, and the return correspondent the other. One stamp is cancelled at the office from which it is originally sent, and the other at the return office."

At the meeting of the Marine Board yesterday, Thomas Brean, engine-driver, was charged with misconduct, in allowing the water to get low in the boiler of the Parramatta steamer, on the 26th January 1880, while he was engineer of the vessel. Mr. C. E. Jeanneret gave evidence against Brean, and explained, the circumstances under which he found the boiler deficient of water, notwithstanding Brean had told him there was plenty of water in it. On this discovery being made the fires were drawn, and the safety-valves opened. As neither party was prepared with witnesses, the case was adjourned for a week. Inquiry was then made by the Board into the circumstances attending the collision of the Southern Cross with the Orphan Girl, on the 20th January, in Darling Harbour, on which occasion the latter was sunk. After considering the evidence (which will be found reported in another column), the Board came to the conclusion that the collision was the fault of John Johnson, master of the Orphan Girl, who committed a breach of the 14th article of the Steering and Sailing Regulations. The Board, seeing that Johnson had no certificate, thought it sufficient to reprimand him, and caution him to be more careful in future.

A middle-aged man was proceeded against at the Water Police Court, yesterday, before Mr. Marsh and a bench of magistrates, on a charge of having made a false declaration in the lists for the East Sydney electorate, by representing that he was the possessor of certain freehold property. At the request of the defendant, who wished to obtain witnesses on his own behalf, the case was remanded until Friday next.

An inquest was held by the City Coroner, yesterday morning on the dead body of an infant found in Camperdown on Saturday. Adam Bond deposed to finding the body wrapped up and lying on the Pyrmont Bridge Road on Saturday afternoon. Constable Johnston went with the last witness, and saw the body of the infant lying on the footpath. It was wrapped up in a calico nightgown, its arms through the armholes; a black cloth jacket was over the gown, and over that a piece of light paper, and covering all was a piece of brown paper. The body was quite covered up; and if it had been alive when placed in the parcel, it could not have breathed afterwards. On one of the pieces of paper was written, "Mr. or Mrs. Tickle, 2 butter 1 soap 1s., sperms 10d." Witness took the body to the dead-house, Circular Quay, and ever since had been making inquiries about the matter. Dr. Egan had examined the body, and found no outward signs of violence; it had been but recently born, and was that of a female child; had made a post mortem examination and found the cause of death was asphyxia or suffocation. The jury found a verdict in accordance therewith, adding that they found some person or persons unknown guilty of the murder of the infant.

About half-past 7 on Sunday morning, Frederick William Holland was found dead in Albert-street, Marrickville, by Albert Norton of the same borough, whilst passing that street in company with his wife. Deceased was 57 years of age, a surveyor and architect, and resided at Francis-street, Enmore. About half-past 1 on Sunday he had his dinner and appeared in his usual health, and shortly afterwards he said to his nephew that he was going to a funeral at Balmain. Dr. Stilwell, of Enmore, saw the body of deceased and found life extinct. An inquest will be held to-day.

Yesterday afternoon a little girl named Alice Abbey, 2 years of age, and residing with her parents at 163, Castlereagh-street, was knocked down in that street by the horse attached to a cart driven by John M'Ivor, in the employ of Mr. Starkey, cordial manufacturer. The horse, in addition to knocking her down, kicked her on the head, inflicting a severe wound. She was taken into her parents residence, and attended by Dr. Bestic.

About half-past 9 o'clock yesterday morning a horse attached to a dray, the property of Frederick Summers, residing at the corner of Riley and Campbell streets, and driven by a man named John M'Kenna, who is in Summers' employ, bolted in Devonshire-street, and when near Holt-street, came into collision with another dray. The shock caused M'Kenna to fall out, and one of the wheels of the dray he was driving passed over his chest; and his foot becoming entangled in the reins, he was dragged along the ground for some distance before he was picked up. As soon as possible he was conveyed in a cab to the Infirmary, but by the time he reached there he was quite dead. A lad named Edmund Guthrie was in the dray with deceased at the time of the accident but escaped unhurt by jumping out from behind. The matter has been reported to the City Coroner, and an inquest will probably be held this morning.

Shortly after noon yesterday, Rose Massey, a woman aged 32, died at No. 46, Yurong-street, Woolloomooloo, under circumstances which necessitated an inquest. This was accordingly initiated at the City Arms Hotel, Stanley-street, during the afternoon, and after some evidence had been taken, was postponed. Before she died Massey stated, in the presence of Dr. Mackenzie and several constables, that she had been struck and kicked by another woman, and that since that occurrence she had been ill.

The following is the report of the Sydney Infirmary for the week ended 31st January, 1880:—Admitted: 38 males, 12 females: total, 50. Discharged: 39 males, 10 females: total, 49. Died: 2 males, 2 females: total, 4. Remaining: 142 males, 63 females: total, 205.

A significant fact (says the Age) was brought under the attention of the House on Thursday afternoon by Mr. Laurens. Referring to telegrams which had been this week received from the London money market, the hon. member informed the House that the Victorian 4½ per cent. debentures were now placed at £108 15s., whilst our 4 per cent. debentures were quoted 10s. higher than the 4 per cents of New South Wales. On these 4½ per cent. debentures the 26 days' interest, payable on 1st January, amounted to less than 7s., and deducting this 7s. from £108 15s. they had the debentures valued in the market at £3 8s. above par. This announcement elicited loud cheers from the Ministerial side of the House, and derisive laughter from the Opposition. Mr. Laurens went on to state that, in May last, the New South Wales 4 per cent. debentures were £3 higher than the Victorian 4 per cents, but now they were 10s., or one-half per cent., below those of Victoria. Mr. Gaunson endeavoured to explain that the Victorian debentures were improving in value because the Times had a special correspondent in Melbourne, who was sending telegrams to England stating that a dissolution was about to take place, and that the fall of the Berry Ministry was at hand. The House laughed at the ingenious explanation.

The Melbourne Daily Telegraph records that Mr. James Hobbs, who died at his residence in Octavia-street, St. Kilda, on Thursday last, aged 88 years, may be said to have seen the birth of the seven great centres of civilization now growing into one Australian dominion. He was one of the expedition which in 1803 was sent out in charge of Governor Collins to found a penal settlement at Port Phillip. He arrived with other settlers and 307 convicts in the ship Ocean, and when the Governor, for divers reasons, determined to shift the locality to Hobart Town, Mr. Hobbs, with his relatives, after a few months' stay at the Heads, proceeded to the banks of the Derwent. Mr. Hobbs subsequently joined the King's ship on the Sydney station, and was an active and enterprising early colonist of Tasmania. He came back to Victoria in 1854, and was for some years in the Customs Department, whence he retired with a pension of about £138 a year.

The Hay Standard says:—Our readers will be sorry to read the sad announcement that appears in this issue of the death of Mrs. Jones, widow of the late David Griffiths Jones, and proprietor of this journal. She died on Monday, January 26, at her residence, Deniliquin. As no tidings of her illness had reached us, there can be no doubt that it was but brief, and that her death occurred somewhat suddenly and unexpected. By her industry and aptitude for business she successfully edited and managed the Pastoral Times since her husband's decease, about three years since.

A sale of plain and fancy needlework, in aid of the Petersham church and parsonage debt, will be held in a tent in the parsonage grounds, Petersham, on the 4th and 5th of February, from 2 till 10 p.m.

The second series of the Urso concerts begins on Wednesday evening, and it is satisfactory to know that the interest in them is already manifested in a strong degree. The plan of the hall is rapidly being filled, and not for one night only. Mdme. Urso will play on Wednesday an Elegy and Polonaise of Wieniawski, and a Reverie of Vieuxtemps; the other numbers of the programme will be of the same meritorious standard, as in the concerts of the first series.

SYDNEY INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

The attendance at the Garden Palace yesterday was as follows:—Season ticket holders, 317; general public, 2649; children, 378; exhibitors and attendants, 722; horse show attendants, 12; Permanent Artillery Band, 17; total, 4095.

The New South Wales Artillery Band performed selections of popular music in the Exhibition Grounds yesterday afternoon.

The recent showers of rain have had the effect of considerably freshening and heightening the effect of the flower-beds in the Garden Palace grounds, which have been so tastefully laid out under the care of Mr. Charles Moore, the Director of the Botanic Gardens. Three months ago the approach to the Exhibition building from Macquarie-street was in a roughly gravelled condition, and very unattractive in appearance; but under Mr. Moore's direction a number of well-made paths have been made, leading from the gateways to the building, and through a number of tastefully designed flower-beds, so thickly planted that they have become beautifully bright floral carpets. In other portions of the grounds the same pleasing transformation has been effected, and certainly one of the most attractive features in connection with the Exhibition is the appearance of the grounds.

THE MUSIC AT THE GARDEN PALACE.

The eighty-third recital of Messrs. John Brinsmead and Sons was given yesterday, at the official platform, at 3 p.m. Miss Lottie Hyam very kindly played for Madame Summerhayes. The programme began with "Les Courriers," by Ritter, to which Gottschalk's pathetic morceau "Le Poete Mourant" succeeded; Liszt's brilliant and difficult transcription followed, and "The Andante Spianato" and "2nd Polonaise" of Chopin concluded the performance. Miss Hyam played with considerable taste and judgment, and displayed remarkable execution. The attendance was numerous and appreciative. Madame Lamal, who played in the Belgian Court, was the only other pianiste during the afternoon. The band played some good music on the basement, to which a crowd seated round the fountain listened apparently well pleased. The band of the N. S. W. Artillery played an excellent selection in the grounds.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In the debate on 20th instant in the Legislative Assembly, on Mr. Combe's motion condemning the increased railway rates for hay, &c., the Minister for Works said no complaint had been received from the North, where producers paid as much as the senders on the Western and Southern lines; this no doubt is caused by the fact of the increase not yet being brought under the notice of railway hay shippers in our district, but when the shoe begins to pinch, after the 1st February, Mr. Lackey will hear of plenty complaints.

The present rate for hay from here (East Maitland) to Newcastle is 2s. 4d. per ton; under the new rates not less than a truck load can be sent for the minimum charge of 14s., and as 12 trusses of each, about 5 cwt., is the most that can be put into a truck it will make the charge equal to 4s. 8d. per ton, just double what it is now. The charge for hay by steamer from Newcastle to Sydney is 3s. 6d. per truss, and from Morpeth 4s. per truss. It will be found much cheaper to cart hay to Morpeth and send by steamer to Sydney, rather than send it by railway via Newcastle. Now, why should not those persons who live close to the line of railway, have the opportunity of sending their produce by it at a reasonable rate? The Secretary for Works, in reply to a question about deepening the Hunter River the other day, said "that the Government did not consider they were acting unwisely in fostering private enterprise, even if it did compete with the railway." But surely it is carrying generosity too far to actually subsidise private enterprise at the expense of the country, which is virtually what the increased rates will do, by driving away the trade from the railway to the steam companies. Messrs. Sands and Co.'s country directory for 1879 states that, "In sown grasses, which includes lucerne hay, Maitland with its 4971 acres, yielding 18,576 tons, is by far the largest producer in New South Wales." And Mr. Lackey, in his speech, says "That large quantities of material have been received from the North." No doubt a very large proportion of which was from this district, and by the railway, so that this loss of revenue becomes a matter worthy of serious consideration.

If the Railway Department were to provide inexpensive handy cranes at all stations, so that farmers could easily load their hay on to the second tier in the railway trucks, they might then avail themselves of the further advantages of using the like powerful presses that their neighbours on the river bank of the Hunter have, so as to press more hay into a truss than is now done. Yours, truly,

A FARMER.

Pitnacree, East Maitland, January 24.

Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil.—Surpassingly Efficacious as a Restorative Medicine and Food.—Dr. Whitmore, Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, writes:—"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a medical practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil, as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. The practice which often prevails of mixing certain ingredients with cod liver oil, to render it agreeable to the taste, is highly objectionable, for we have it on the authority of Dr. de Jongh himself that anything which sophisticates it takes largely from its therapeutic value. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regimenal properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with in such uniform combination." Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, pints, and quarts by all chemists and druggists. Sole consignees, Ansar, Harford, and Co., 77, Strand, London. Agents at Sydney, Elliott, Brothers.—Adv.

CONFLICT BETWEEN RUSSIAN POLICE AND NIHILISTS.

When the Desdemona rounded Clark Island the Pandora was about 300 yards and the Lucia 150 yards ahead of her.

THE SYDNEY INFIRMARY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—At a time when legislation has proved ineffective, would you kindly allow me space, in order to lay before your readers and the public generally, the dangers they are to be exposed to by the erection of the new hospital in Macquarie-street.

It is a well-known fact that the old Infirmary building was pulled down because it was, as we learn from the report of that institution for 1878, "condemned by the medical faculty for its unhealthiness."

In the report of the Commission appointed in the year 1873, to inquire into and report upon the working and management of the public charities of New South Wales, we find the following passage concerning this building:—"Not only is the place infected with hospitalism, but there is no proper ventilation, and for some time there was not a single case of wound which was not attacked with erysipelas." And now, on the ground of this condemned hospital we are to have another built, at a cost of some thousands of pounds, to be condemned in its turn, as its predecessor.

With regard to the patients, the same report says:—"That there is an average of between fifty and eighty chronic cases always in the hospital. The Infirmary being overcrowded, a great many cases are refused admission, there being no vacancies for them. About one applicant out of every five is rejected for want of room, and this happens although there are many persons in the institution who ought not to be there. Some are improperly detained by the honorary surgeons to suit their own purposes. One or two of the medical staff decline to punish violation of the rules; they refuse to discharge offenders; they allow patients, in defiance of the rules, to wear their own clothes in the wards; and though smoking is prohibited, they take no notice of repeated cases of smoking."

If this state of things existed in 1873, is it not likely that it still exists, as the Infirmary is, for the most part, under the same management, which can snap its fingers at the public, and defy all authority?

In an able paper read by Mr. Alfred Roberts before the Royal Society in 1874, that gentleman clearly showed that the only way to get rid of those terrible diseases, pyemia, erysipelas, and others dependent on hospitalism, was to totally destroy the present buildings and plant trees which would absorb the poisonous air, and, in a few years, present a splendid site for the erection of public buildings.

In the New South Wales Medical Gazette, April, 1875, under the heading, "The Hospitals and Medical Schools of Sydney," we find the following:—"These subjects are now engaging anxious attention and discussion with a view to speedy action. We regret to say that while nearly all are agreed that the necessities of the colony require the early establishment of a medical school, there is much difference of opinion as regards the hospital accommodation. The old Infirmary buildings, however, are so dangerous to the puerperal population of the city, that the question can no longer be shirked, and we hope soon to hear that such candid representations have been made to the Government as will enable them to realize the gravity of the situation."

In October, 1875, a deputation waited on the then Colonial Secretary, Mr. (now Sir John) Robertson, urging upon him the necessity of completing the Prince Alfred Hospital, as the Infirmary buildings in Macquarie-street were unfit for patients.

Among that number was Mr. Fitzpatrick, who has since come round to the opinion that the Macquarie-street site cannot be surpassed for a hospital. Mr. Robertson then promised to place a sum of £10,000 on the Estimates for 1876-7-8, on condition that an equal sum be subscribed.

Dr. William Aitken, in his well-known work, "Outlines of the Science and Practice of Medicine," page 113, says "That active elements, germs, poisons, active principles, or noxious agents, may contaminate the drinking water of a district, or may infect the atmosphere, or lie dormant for variable and unknown periods of time, just as seeds or ova dry up and preserve their vital properties." What startling considerations for the Sydney public to meditate on! That we may expect in the new hospital those germs of pyemia and erysipelas which showed themselves so unmistakably in the old building.

Then let the public agitate in a legitimate manner until those in authority are convinced that a new Infirmary on the old site would, instead of proving a blessing to the poor of the colony, inevitably prove a curse.

I remain, Sir, yours, SANITAS URBIS.

January 31.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—With reference to your leader of Friday, on proposed new hospital Sydney Infirmary site, allow me to say it is not intended to be a general hospital in the broad sense of the term. It is true at first, the Infirmary authorities did intend that the accommodation should be for 252 beds, including old south wing, but, after due consideration, it was determined to remove all the old and defective buildings (Nightingale wing excepted), and to erect a hospital (emergency), shape letter T, to accommodate about two hundred beds, not calculating the private paying patients rooms.

The favour of inserting above will oblige

January 31. INFIRMARY SUBSCRIBER.

The scandal in the Faubourg Saint Germain consequent on the elopement of a rich young heiress, Mademoiselle D——, with the son of Musurus Pasha, Ambassador for the Ottoman Empire at the Court of Saint James, has (writes a Paris correspondent of a London paper) not subsided. The young lady has returned to the bosom of her family after ten days' absence, and is now repenting her folly in a convent. Her friends have appealed to M. Waddington, Minister for Foreign Affairs, whose influence procured the return of the truant, and he has been asked to demand the extradition of the seducer, who is to be made amenable to French law, which punishes with ten years' transportation any person beguiling from her home a girl under 16 years of age. The affair is far from over, although the son of the Turkish Ambassador declares that the young lady is merely guilty of a childish freak which had no serious consequence. He further offers to repair any wrong he may have caused to her in the estimation of her reputation in society by marriage. This proposition has been scornfully refused by the family.

Some observations of the Lord Chief Justice of England, in the Crown Court at Norwich, suggest something (says Figaro) that may be done to check drunkenness. On behalf of a prisoner charged with a serious offence, it was urged that "a very little drink really deprived him of the use of his faculties, and made him subject to delusions." The Lord Chief Justice said: "If a man who drank a little became out of his mind, then he ought not to drink at all. If a man knew that such would be the effect of his drinking—that he would thereby lose his self-control, and no longer be master of his actions—then he ought to abstain from drink, and his drinking could not be set up as an excuse." In addressing the prisoner, who was acquitted, his lordship said: "You are a fortunate man, a very fortunate man. You have been convicted again and again, and had you been convicted now, you would have been sentenced to penal servitude. If drinking has been the cause of all these offences, then it is your duty to abstain from drink. Take warning, then, for the excuse may not avail you with another jury."

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING.)

The first sittings for the present year commenced this morning, and, with the exception of about three cases, the whole of the undefended ones were disposed of.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

MONDAY.

JURORS FINED.

GRIEVOUS BODILY HARM.

The case against Cornelius Brand, for inflicting grievous bodily harm upon one Donald Bradley, was resumed. Mr. W. Roberts, senior, appeared for prisoner. The evidence for the Crown was to the effect that, on the afternoon of 27th October last, prosecutor, who at the time was under the influence of liquor, went into prisoner's public-house, the Killarney Castle Hotel, in Kent-street, and asked for some drink. Prisoner, however, refused to serve him, and some words ensued between them, which resulted in prisoner's throwing prosecutor out into the street. Prosecutor then went away up Bathurst-street, but returned to Kent-street, and when near prisoner's house the latter rushed out at him, struck him, and knocked him down, and while down took his right foot in his hand, twisted it round, and broke his leg near the ankle. Prosecutor was conveyed in a cab to the hospital, where he remained for a fortnight. He gave prisoner no provocation whatever, nor did he use any bad language. The defence was that prosecutor asked for drink, and when refused by prisoner struck him a violent blow in the eye, blackening that organ. Prisoner thereupon expelled prosecutor, who went away for a little and then returned and challenged prisoner out to fight. The latter accepted the challenge, and after an encounter between them, in which both fell, prosecutor got up and ran away, but in trying to step on the footpath, fell and broke his right leg. The evidence was directly contradictory. Mr. Roberts addressed the jury in a speech of an hour's duration, and urged them to acquit the prisoner on the ground that the evidence for the prosecution generally was entirely untrustworthy, while in one or two instances it corroborated the witnesses for the defence. The Crown Prosecutor replied, and asked the jury to consider the probabilities of the case. His Honor, in summing up, said, though it would be competent for the jury to bring in a verdict of common assault, the real issue to be tried was, did prisoner maliciously and unlawfully break one of prosecutor's legs.

The jury retired at 20 minutes to 12, and were absent up till 5 o'clock, when, upon returning into Court, the foreman said there was no likelihood of their agreeing. Ten had agreed. The point about which two were doubtful, was as to the maliciousness.

His HONOR then explained the law of the case, and the jury once more retired, and after being absent about ten minutes they returned into Court with a verdict of not guilty, and prisoner was discharged.

NUISANCE.

Samuel Keep, on bail, was charged with that he did, on the 1st day of November last, at Botany, "near unto divers public streets being the Queen's common, highways, and also near unto the dwelling-house of diver liege subjects of our said lady the Queen, there situate and being, unlawfully and injuriously did cast, throw, and deposit divers large quantities of nightsoil and other offensive matter, by reason of which divers noisome, offensive, and unwholesome smells and stenches were from thence emitted and issued, so that the air then and there was and yet is rendered and became and was and yet is corrupted, offensive, uncomfortable, and unwholesome, to the great damage and common nuisance of all the liege subjects of our said lady the Queen there inhabiting, being, and residing, and going, returning, and passing through the said streets and highways, and against the peace of our lady the Queen, her Crown and dignity." The second count ran as follows:—"That the said Samuel Keep, on the said 1st day of November, and from that day until the day of exhibiting this information, at Botany, in the colony aforesaid, near unto divers public streets, being the Queen's common, highways, and also near unto the dwelling houses of divers liege subjects of our said lady the Queen, there situate and being, unlawfully and injuriously did cast, throw, and deposit, and yet doth cast, throw, and deposit divers large quantities of nightsoil and other offensive matter, by reason of which divers noisome, offensive, and unwholesome smells and stenches are from thence emitted and issued, so that the air then and there is rendered and become corrupted, offensive, uncomfortable, and unwholesome, to the great damage and common nuisance of all the liege subjects of our said lady the Queen there inhabiting, being, and residing, and going, returning, and passing through the said streets and highways, and against the peace of our said lady the Queen, her Crown and dignity." Defendant pleaded guilty. Mr. T. M. Williamson said it was upon his advice defendant pleaded guilty, as the Crown prosecutor had consented not to pray for judgment on condition that defendant would enter into his own recognizances not to commit the offence again. The Crown prosecutor said that the recognizances would be for defendant to appear when called upon to receive sentence. This was done to prevent a repetition of the offence. Defendant was thereupon bound over in the sum of £50 to appear when called upon.

BREAKING AND ENTERING.

John Jones and Henry Elvy pleaded not guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the Imperial Hotel, at Newtown, and stealing therefrom four dozen bottles of ale and porter. It appeared that, on the night of the 13th January, prisoners were seen by two sons of the landlord of the hotel breaking open the door of the cellar, which they then entered. They were then sober, but when they came out about an hour afterwards they were drunk. They carried the bottles away six or seven at the time. Jones was apprehended the following day, and Elvy on the 16th January. The jury, without leaving the box, returned a verdict of not guilty, and prisoners were discharged.

FORGERY AND UTTERING.

David Joseph Newton, on bail, was charged with that, on the 1st November last, at Lithgow, he did unlawfully, knowingly, and falsely forge a certain writing purporting to be the receipt of the Deputy Registrar-General, endorsed on a certain mortgage deed between Thomas Donnelly, mortgagor, of the one part, and Robert James Fisher, mortgagee, of the other part, and dated 9th December last. The said forged writing was as follows:—"Received into the office for the registration of deeds at Sydney, this first day of November, A.D. 1879, at 10 mins. to twelve o'clock, in the forenoon, from David Joseph Newtown, of Lithgow, solicitor, a copy of the within deed, verified by the said David Joseph Newton, numbered 2421 of Book 235," "Jas. Boscawen Duff, Deputy Registrar," with intent thereby then to defraud. Prisoner was further charged with that he did, on the same date, unlawfully, falsely, and deceitfully utter and publish as true a certain other false, forged, and counterfeit writing, purporting to be the receipt of the Deputy Registrar-General, endorsed on a certain mortgage between the same parties. There were two other counts in the indictment. Prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Pilcher, instructed by Mr. Hellyer. The facts of the case were published a few days ago, and need not be repeated. Prisoner said he had no intention to defraud. After the jury had been addressed by Mr. Pilcher and the Crown prosecutor, his Honor summed up. He pointed out that the law gave priority to registered deeds, so that the endorsement on the mortgage made it a very important document, and it being void would have enabled Donnelly to give another mortgage. The fee to be paid on registration would have to be returned to the defendant by the person for whom he was acting; and his representation that the money had been paid was evidence of intention to defraud. It was not necessary that a person should be actually defrauded—the mere fact of some one being rendered liable to be defrauded was sufficient to constitute an intent to defraud. There were two counts in the indictment. The first alleged that the forgery had been committed by the defendant, and if they believed the evidence for the Crown they must find the prisoner guilty on that count. With regard to the second count, of uttering, the evidence showed that after having had the deeds in his possession a considerable time, prisoner handed them to Mr. Fisher, one of them bearing the forged signature. His Honor then pointed out the law of the case as regarded the uttering, and added that prisoner had received the document for the purpose of registration, and had returned it bearing a false registration. They were first to consider whether prisoner forged the endorsement; and secondly, whether he uttered the document knowing it to be false. The jury retired, and after being absent nearly two hours returned into Court with a verdict of guilty on the second count, viz., uttering the endorsement knowing it to be false. Prisoner, in answer to the usual question, had nothing to say. His Honor, in passing sentence, referred to the painful position in which prisoner stood, and said he could not give a less sentence than two years imprisonment. In prisoner's case the crime was a more serious one because he had been entrusted to do the work, and in passing that sentence, he (his Honor) was guided by the intention of the Legislature. At the end of a year prisoner could appeal to the Executive, and if they thought the sentence too severe he would get a remission of a portion of it. Prisoner was then sentenced to two years' imprisonment with hard labour in Darlinghurst gaol.

LARCENY.

Joseph Meiage, a Frenchman, was charged with that he did on the 13th January instant, feloniously steal, take, and carry away from Paul's boarding-house, in Pitt-street, one bag of the value of 5s., one piece of paper (a certificate) value one penny, 55 French gold coins, value £20, and £18 in sovereigns, the property of one Marie Choinier. Prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was undefended. The evidence for the Crown was to the effect that on the evening of the 13th ultimo, two Frenchwomen (one of whom was prosecutrix) and prisoner arrived in Sydney by the City of Melbourne, from Noumea, en route for France. They all went to stay at Paul's boarding-house, intending to remain there till the departure of the Orient. Prisoner was merely a fellow-passenger of prosecutrix and the other lady; they knew him in Noumea, by his serving them with milk. Prosecutrix left her money in the bag on top of her luggage, in her bedroom, the window of which was open all night. The bag was within reach of a man's arm from the window. On the following morning, prosecutrix got up about 6 o'clock, and on going out into the yard saw the certificate, which had been in the bag with her money, lying on the ground; she then discovered her loss, and began to cry. While in this state prisoner came in and appeared very much surprised when he heard of her loss. About 9 o'clock the matter was reported to Senior-sergeant Larkins, who came immediately, and upon searching prisoner, found nearly all the missing money on him. The evidence was overwhelming against the prisoner, and the jury, without leaving the box, found him guilty. An official record from the police officials of New Caledonia, showed that he was a notorious criminal. Besides several convictions for theft, he had served a sentence of five years for rape upon a child. His Honor sentenced him to three years' hard labour in Darlinghurst gaol.

The Court then adjourned till 10 o'clock to-day. The whole of the remaining cases will be disposed of to-day.

POLICE.

At the CENTRAL POLICE COURT, yesterday, the Police Magistrate was assisted in the Summons Court by Messrs. Alexander, Fraser, and Bull; and in the Crime Court by Messrs. Pearce, Hunt, and Moses.

In the Summons Court, Edward St. George was ordered to enter into his own recognizance in £5 to keep the peace towards Alice Miller, who complained of his having put her in bodily fear by threats of violence. In Brown v. Davis, a proceeding under the Tenants Act, a seven days' warrant of possession was granted to complainant. Nine other cases on the summons paper were struck out for want of prosecution.

William Wildman was charged with having gone with intent to commit a felony upon the premises of Isaac Hereford. Constable Bailey deposed that between 11 and 12 o'clock on Sunday night, being on duty in George-street West, he saw a light in Mr. Hereford's shop, and looking in at the fanlight over the door saw prisoner walking about with a match light; went round to the back door and knocked, and prisoner not replying he forced the door; he found the prisoner lying down, his boots off, and his coat under his head; he wore both his coat and boots when witness saw him in the shop; he was a little under the influence of liquor; took him into custody. Isaac Hereford, of George-street West, deposed that prisoner has been a few weeks in his employment, and, except as to his occasionally taking too much liquor, knew nothing against him; he had no right to be on his premises as described by the constable; nothing had been removed or disturbed. Prisoner said that he went there only to pass the night, having taken a little too much drink, and was too late to be admitted into his lodging. To be imprisoned one month.

James M'Connell, charged with having assaulted constable Anderson, pleaded guilty. On the 11th April last, it appeared, defendant threw several stones at the constable, one of which took effect, striking him on the breast, after which defendant took possession of the officer's baton, but failed in his attempt to use it. To pay a penalty of 40s., or to be imprisoned one month.

In the Small Debts Court a list of fifty-eight cases came on for adjudication, of which thirty were for goods sold, nine for wages, eight for rent or board and lodging, five for money lent or dishonoured promissory notes, and six for defamation. In a case in which a married woman sued for wages Mr. Carroll, for the defendant, contended that plaintiff had no locus standi, that she must sue by her husband. Mr. Clayton, contra, pointed out that by the Act 42 Victoria, No. 11, a married woman may maintain an action in her own name for the recovery of any wages. The Police Magistrate gave judgment in favour of the plaintiff.

At the WATER POLICE COURT, yesterday, Mr. Marsh, Water Police Magistrate, was assisted, on the bench, by Messrs. Lester, Browne, Sladen, and Goodridge, Js.P.

A woman named Mary Ann Cox was ordered to pay a fine of £5, with the alternative of two months' imprisonment, for using obscene language in Woolloomooloo-street.

Alfred Gulliver was fined 60s., or, in default, six weeks' imprisonment, for using indecent language in Prince-street; with an additional fine of 10s. for being drunk and disorderly.

The greater number of cases on the charge-sheet were of a similar nature to the above, and fines were inflicted ranging from 10s. to 40s.

John Carroll, a middle-aged man, was charged with throwing a stone, to the danger of persons passing in Charlotte-place. It appeared that on Sunday evening the prisoner indulged in the mad freak of throwing stones in all directions, regardless of the consequences; and as there was considerable danger of passers-by being struck by the missiles, the attention of constable Taylor was directed to the matter, who locked the man up. The only excuse which Carroll had to offer for his strange conduct was that he had been imbibing too freely; and the Bench inflicted a fine of 20s., with the alternative of seven days' imprisonment.

A lad named William Harrington, 13 years of age, was fined 5s., or four days in gaol, for playing at pitch and toss, to the annoyance of people at Fort Macquarie.

At the NEWTOWN POLICE COURT, yesterday, the Bench was occupied by Mr. W. Jolly.

Mary M'Donald, charged with using obscene language on Stanmore Road, was fined 10s. with the alternative of four days imprisonment.

James Martin was brought up on suspicion of having stolen £5 5s., a nugget of gold value 10s., and a common purse, from the dwelling of Le Ho, his brother-in-law. The arresting constable having deposed that the arrest was made outside the boundaries of the jurisdiction of this Court, the Bench decided that there was no jurisdiction and the prisoner was discharged.

One drunkard was fined 5s.

The CONFESSION to a MURDER COMMITTED IN ENGLAND.

(From the Yass Courier, January 30.)

William Thomas Coulthard, who last Friday gave himself into the custody of the police, and confessed to having murdered his wife at Everton, near Liverpool, in January last year, still remains in custody, awaiting instructions from the authorities in Sydney. Since his confinement he has closely adhered to his first story, and, in spite of cross-questioning, repeats the statement, and gives days and dates and other particulars without the slightest hesitation and without variation. He states that since his confession he has been much easier in his mind, and that the apparition of his late wife has not since appeared to him. He spends his time chiefly in reading, and has, we understand, been visited by the Rev. Mr. Faunce (C.E.), who has supplied him with books to read.

A communication was received from Dr. Thomas Morgan Joseph, deputy medical superintendent of the Hospital for the Insane, Gladesville, giving particulars of a Walter Coulthard, who was confined in the asylum for 14 days in 1876, suffering from the effects of drink. The prisoner was asked if he had ever been in the colony before last year, and he replied that he had not, that his brother had come to the colony by the ship Merry Monarch in 1870, and having taken to drink his father had remitted money to pay his passage home: that he returned to England in 1877 by the ship True Briton, and that he there joined the Sons of Temperance, and was now a Good Templar, and carrying on a successful business as an auctioneer and commission agent at Bath; at the time his brother Walter was in Australia, he himself was in America on business; that his brother and himself were much alike in appearance, but that Walter was not so tall as himself. As proving to some extent the prisoner's statement, it may be remarked that amongst his effects is a Bible, on the flyleaf of which appears, as the prisoner states, in his mother's handwriting, the words that it is a "parting gift," and is dated May, 1879. The prisoner appears anxious to learn the result of the inquiries supposed to have been instituted in consequence of his confession, and calculates that confirmation of his statement should be received in about a week after his confession was made. Yesterday he was transferred from the lockup to the gaol, as there is no convenience in the former for affording the opportunity of taking exercise. The confession, which we understand went minutely into particulars easily capable of proof or otherwise, is in the hands of the police authorities in Sydney. The prisoner, when spoken to on the subject, says he has no desire to alter it in any way, and asserts that it will be found on inquiry to be truthful in every particular. It is stated that before leaving Britain prisoner circulated a report that his wife had eloped with another to America, and he thus accounted for her disappearance as well as for his own departure. He has one or two children living with relatives in England.

MARINE BOARD.

The usual weekly meeting of the Marine Board was held yesterday. There were present:—Captains Hixson (President), Fox, M'Lean, Broomfield, and Jenkins, the Hon. J. B. Watt; and Lieutenant Lindeman (secretary).

ALLEGED MISCONDUCT.

Thomas Brean was charged with misconduct, in allowing the water to get low in the boiler of the Parramatta steamer, on the 26th January, 1880, while he was engineer of the vessel.

Charles E. Jeanneret stated that on Monday last, about 12 noon, he was going up the Parramatta River, in the Parramatta steamer; Brean was the engine driver of the day; the vessel would not keep steam, and, seeing only 30 lbs. registered, the witness spoke of it, and Brean tried to get up more steam and failed; the witness was then informed that there was no water in the boiler, and he made Brean accompany him below to make an examination of it; there was no water in the gauge cocks, and the witness ordered the fire to be withdrawn and the safety valves opened; previously Brean had told him in reply to an inquiry that there was plenty of water in the boiler. In reply to Brean the witness said that the boiler did not leak. Neither party was prepared with witnesses, and the case was therefore adjourned for a week.

COLLISION.

Inquiry was made into the circumstances attending the collision of the Southern Cross with the Orphan Girl, on the 20th January, in Darling Harbour, on which occasion the latter was sunk. John Johnson, master of the steam ballast lighter Orphan Girl, stated that his vessel was coming from Pennant Hills, at 1.20 p.m., Tuesday, 20th January; when near the Pyrmont Bridge she came into collision with the Southern Cross and was sunk; as he passed Peacock Point he saw the Southern Cross leaving her wharf, backing out; he saw there would be no room to go under her stern, so he put his helm a-starboard, and as he did so saw the Southern Cross' helm put a-starboard and come down on the Orphan Girl; she struck her in the fore rigging, and the mate of the Orphan Girl cried out "jump into the boat;" they jumped into a boat, and the Orphan Girl sank; if the Southern Cross had only put her helm aport the collision would not have occurred; the engineer stopped the engine of the Orphan Girl, and went full speed astern about five minutes before the collision; after the event the Southern Cross did not try to pick them up or to help them in any way; the collision occurred in mid-channel, between Peacock Point and the A. S. N. Co.'s works, and there was not room for the Orphan Girl to go under the stern of the Southern Cross. Matthew Vincent, engineer of the Orphan Girl, said that the vessel was coming down the Parramatta River, when the Southern Cross backed out from the Grafton Wharf; he saw that she stopped going astern and went ahead, so he stopped the engine and went astern full speed to get clear of her; it was too late, and the Orphan Girl was struck and sunk; previously the mate of the Southern Cross cried out, "Jump into your boat," and he did so, about two minutes before the vessel sunk; if the Southern Cross had ported her helm she would have cleared the Orphan Girl very easily. Thomas Capern, master of the Southern Cross stated that, on the 20th January, his vessel came into collision with the lighter Orphan Girl in Darling Harbour, and sunk her; the weather was fine and clear, and both vessels were under steam; the Southern Cross backed out from the Grafton Wharf and then steamed ahead slowly until near the gasworks; as he was slewing he saw the lighter broad on the bow, and said to the mate "that man's never going to cross our bows;" he then beckoned to the Orphan Girl to keep to port, but no notice of this was taken; he then stopped the engines, and went full speed astern, when the Orphan Girl ran into them, her mast catching the Southern Cross bowsprit; his mate had previously called to them to go to port; when the Orphan Girl sunk, soon after the collision, he saw the master and engineer in a boat safe enough and did not think, as he had his ship to look after, that he need wait for them; the Orphan Girl was struck on the starboard bow. Henry Lauridsen, master of the Woniora, saw the collision; when the Orphan Girl was about 50 yards from the Southern Cross she starboarded her helm and went right across the other one's bows; the Southern Cross had little way on her, but as the Orphan Girl went down, her stern rose out of the water, and he could see that the propeller was moving, he believed, ahead; he was on his own vessel at the Grafton Wharf, and the lighter seemed to have plenty of room to go under the Southern Cross' stern. John Timms, second mate of the Southern Cross, was on board when she struck and sunk the Orphan Girl; this witness corroborated the evidence of Captain Capern. William Fisher, first mate of the Southern Cross, gave evidence to the same effect. William Cooper, chief engineer of the Southern Cross, also gave evidence as to the orders he received to alter the vessel's course during the time immediately before the collision. After considering the evidence the Board came to the conclusion that the collision was the fault of John Johnson, master of the Orphan Girl, who committed a breach of the 14th article of the Steering and Sailing Regulations. The Board, seeing that Johnson had no certificate, thought it sufficient to reprimand him and caution him to be more careful in future. The Board then adjourned.

On the coast and mountain districts there has been this month a fair supply of rain, the heaviest being in the northern coast districts, reaching a maximum fall of 8 inches at Port Macquarie. In the western river districts there has been little rain, in many places none at all.

The temperature has been generally moderate, and rather below the average for December.

CARBON FOR ELECTRIC LIGHTS.—Mr. Gray has taken out new patents for this purpose. He reduces carbon to a fine powder, and washes it in alkaline or acid solutions, and then mixes with sugar molasses and other adhesive substances that will liquefy with heat. The mixture is afterwards moulded in a press, and submitted to a high temperature in order to carbonise the saccharine matter.—Electrician.

FATE OF LEICHHARDT AND HUME'S EXPEDITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—There are many gentlemen, who kindly assisted me six years ago in my endeavours to see justice done to Andrew Hume, who will be deeply interested in the correspondence I enclose, and I shall be much obliged if you will afford it space in your columns.

At present I will only draw attention to the following points:—

1. That the gentlemen affording the present information have never seen any connected account of the statements made by Hume, as published, nor are they aware of the many further particulars obtained from Hume by myself, in personal interviews, and still in my private possession.

2. Hume fully described to me the good, well-watered country between Sturt's Desert and the telegraph line, which has since been discovered, and which it was his first object to reach from Cooper's Creek. He also described the "Pitcherie" plant, referred to by Mr. Skuthorpe, its uses, and effects. I also hold Hume's account of "thatched huts," and of enormous stores of "nardoo" seed, as described by Mr. Skuthorpe, and of other signs of civilization, not found by Hume amongst other tribes.

3. The existence of an aged white man amongst the blacks, in a locality never reached by any explorer till within the last few years, is now, I think, indisputably proved; also, the existence of his half-caste children, of the ages stated by Hume, which proves the protracted residence of the white man in the tribe, while the fact of a tree being marked with Hume's name must be almost conclusive evidence of his having visited that tribe, although his knowledge of dates was so very limited that the one given may have been far from accurate.

4. The locality now referred to is undoubtedly very different to that in which, from Hume's story, I assumed that Classen might be found; but until further information is obtained I cannot forego the conclusion that Hume had also met a white man west of the telegraph line—the evidence existing of Hume's acquaintance (previous to his employment on that line) with the tribes to the westward of it, and Mr. Masson's evidence of the papers shown to him appear to me to have been, as yet, entirely uncontroverted—and Hume repeatedly stated to me that "he knew of another white man amongst the blacks," but I could never elicit any clear information about him or the locality referred to. Hume, who was very jealous of being possibly forestalled by others, would naturally be more reticent respecting the one whose position was so much more readily accessible.

Whether the case now referred to proves to be that of Classen or not, the fact appears to be established that a white man has lived in compulsory exile amongst the aborigines for many years; has survived to within about 3 years of the present date—and perished miserably, in his old age, within 20 miles of a settler's homestead. If Mr. Skuthorpe, on his arrival in Sydney can show the slightest likelihood of the recovery of the remains of this unfortunate and possibly of some clues to his identity, also of the rescue of his half-caste children who must know something of his previous history (Hume stated that the half-castes to whom he referred, spoke with their father in a foreign tongue, in no way akin to any aboriginal dialect; and that the father had a book, a New Testament, from which he read in that language), surely there are a sufficient number of persons in this colony interested in the unravelling of a mystery, which may throw the slightest light on the "fate of Leichhardt," to secure the execution of an immediate and exhaustive search under the guidance of Mr. Skuthorpe. My own present position will not admit of my taking up the matter in the same manner as I did six years ago, but every assistance in my power will be readily afforded.

I am, Sir, &c., E. DU FAUR.

Marfa, Croydon, January 31.

Kirwan's (Herbert Downs) station is situated in about latitude 23·10 south, longitude 139·20 east.

The Mulligan River in about longitude 138·30 east.

"Curras Station, Gil Gil, Gwydir, January 25.

"My dear Mr. Du Faur,—Knowing the interest you have always taken in any matter relating to the curious dropping out of all human ken of poor lost Leichhardt and his companions, I shall make no apology for sending you the enclosed memorandum of particulars gathered from what I may call the well-considered and well-sifted statements of the Messrs. J. R. and H. Skuthorpe, who now hold this station, besides being also squatters, and furthest-west explorers of the more distant regions of Northern Queensland.

"You will at once see how thoroughly you were justified in not abandoning all hope of Hume's statements respecting Classen being the statements of truth.

"Mr. H. Skuthorpe goes shortly to Sydney to the Exhibition, and I have requested him to call upon you, so that should any question arise upon the statements I now forward to you, he may give you the needful explanations.

"In some haste, believe me, &c.,

"R. BARRINGTON DAWSON.

"P.S.—Neither of the Messrs. Skuthorpe have yet seen any connected account of the statements made by Hume, and published in the papers.

"I may add that you are quite at liberty to make any use of this note and of the enclosures which you may think fit.—R. B. D."

Memorandum of some particulars obtained from Messrs. J. R. and H. Skuthorpe, corroborating Hume's statements with respect to Classen, the supposed survivor of Leichhardt's party:—

"Curras Station, Gwydir, 25th January, 1880.

"About a month prior to the date of Hume's death Mr. J. R. Skuthorpe, then on his way to the Diamantina, met Hume on the New South Wales border, and spent a night with him at his camp fire. Mr. Skuthorpe had then been within about 400 miles of Hume's alleged furthest point. From Hume's conversation, and especially from what he said as to the far western country known to Mr. Skuthorpe, the latter was inclined to think that Hume spoke truth with respect to parts which were beyond his knowledge at that time, but which he has since visited and found in very close correspondence with Hume's statements.

"Some country on the Diamantina, fully 300 miles from any point previously visited by Mr. Skuthorpe, he at once recognised through the very accurate details of its features which Hume had given him.

"No tracings, however, of Classen, nor of any other white man, could then be seen or heard of, except that some trees bore marks evidently made by M'Kinley, the explorer.

"Here it may be noted that Hume, when Mr. Skuthorpe met him on the Barwan, though quite ready with accurate details of the country on the Diamantina, which Mr. Skuthorpe then wished to explore, was very reticent as to the country beyond it; being, no doubt, anxious not to be forestalled, in matters relating to his own quest by any other traveller bound towards the same direction as himself.

"After the Messrs. Skuthorpe had spent some time on the Diamantina, at a station formed by Mr. H. Skuthorpe, some blacks of that district informed the brothers that a long way further west was a very aged white man, whom they had seen in their travels westward to obtain the intoxicating herb, 'pitcherie,' which grows (so far as is at present known) on one creek only, and that creek not more than forty miles from the principal camp of the tribe by whom the old white man (Classen let us say) was detained. The blacks of the Diamantina described Classen as very feeble, imitating his decrepid gait; said that he was frequently carried by the blacks long distances, from camp to camp, and that he was held in high esteem among all the tribes as an excellent 'medicine man.'

"About 18 months after Messrs. Skuthorpe had settled on the Diamantina (that is about two years after the camp fire interview with Hume), Mr. Coleough Kirwan, a friend of theirs, came past the station with cattle, in search of new country. He settled, eventually, about 180 miles further west, on the River Herbert, at a point distant about forty miles from that part of the Mulligan river where Classen was supposed to be detained. Mr. Kirwan soon had frequent interviews with the Mulligan blacks, who were in the habit of crossing from that river to the Herbert. Some of these informed him that an aged white man was with them; but, on Kirwan asking them to bring him across, they refused, alleging that if they brought him he would probably not be allowed to return.

"About a month after this refusal the same tribe, among whom were observed two half-castes, a young man and woman, aged respectively about 20 and 17 years, returned to the Herbert, giving Mr. Kirwan to understand that they had told the white man of other 'white fellows' having 'sat down' on the Herbert; that he had thereupon urged them strongly to take him across, and, upon their refusal, had stolen out of the camp at night; that next day they followed his tracks to a point about half way between the camp he had left and Mr. Kirwan's station, and at that point they found him in a waterless country lying dead. These blacks refused to tell Kirwan where they had buried him, alleging that he (Kirwan) would very likely dig him up and take him away.

"What is related above appears to have occurred in the latter part of November, 1876. In March, 1877, Mr. Kirwan, having suffered from fever and ague, aggravated by semi-starvation through the long delay of teams loaded with supplies, died at the Hamilton river, on his way to the Messrs. Skuthorpe's station on the Diamantina. Mr J. R. Skuthorpe then went to the Herbert to administer to the estate, and resided about four months on the late Mr. Kirwan's station. During this time a Bora brought Mulligan blacks in great numbers to meet the tribes on the Herbert. Mr. Skuthorpe then made many inquiries as to the white man; the unanimous response was that he was dead. This, Mr. Skuthorpe did not at first believe, and he soon after, accompanied by a Diamantina black, who could interpret, went across to the Mulligan, and reached the camp where Classen was supposed to have been. Here the same reply was given and the same story told. Here was also the same refusal to say where the burial took place. On inquiring whether the man had any papers similar to writing paper produced by Mr. Skuthorpe, the reply was 'Plenty.' They were said to have been kept, so the interpreter stated, in a saddle bag, not like that of Mr. Skuthorpe's packhorse, but smaller, and having 'no rings.' On being asked if they had ever seen any other white men, the reply was, 'Two.' On further inquiry Mr. Skuthorpe thought that one of these must have been Mr. Gilmour, inspector of police, as they stated him to have been accompanied by armed black men, while the other must have been Hume, of whom they told Mr. Skuthorpe that this one stopped two moons with the white man, and had left his brand on a coolobar tree, near the river. On being taken to this tree, at about two miles from the camp, Hume's name, in letters about six inches long, with the figures 1867, were distinctly traced, the letters and numerals having been cut fully an inch deep into the solid wood. On the enclosed paper Mr. Skuthorpe has delineated the appearance of these letters and figures, to the best of his recollection:—

HUME

"He further inquired, through the interpreter, if the white man had anything of his own. Only a 'flour-bag mare,' was the reply—that is, a white, or roan, or grey mare. Nothing, however, could be seen of her at that time; but so lately as last June Mr. J. R. Skuthorpe, while riding with Mr. Gough, the manager of Herbert Downs (late Kirwan's) station, came upon a very light-coloured roan mare, of a most aged appearance, grazing near Lake Amroo, distant about 25 miles westerly from the blacks' camp at the Mulligan. Her only brand was a small but legible JW on the near shoulder, and her front teeth, both upper and lower, had all disappeared. I may mention that, prior to the discovery of the mare, two 'gins,' Mr. Skuthorpe states, had told him that 'the old white fellow' was buried among the high red sandhills which stand between the head of the Mulligan and the head of the Pitcherie Creek. In all probability the saddle-bag and papers were buried with him.

"With regard to the fate of Leichhardt's party, the Mulligan blacks distinctly informed Mr. Skuthorpe that he, whom we may assume to have been Classen, came to them from the 'far west'; in doing which he must have crossed a strip of Sturt's desert gully, 120 miles wide, unless the party may have come to grief in the desert itself, may have separated in search of water—some going East and some West. Mr. H. Skuthorpe was driven back in this way not long since, after having got nearly half-way across. Admit that this separation is not improbable—and we may fairly hope that the country west of the desert may yet hold one or more survivors. Thus Cairn's Range is said to stand somewhat centrally, within the desert strip referred to; and the eastern spurs of that range give rise to the head waters of the Herbert, which waters saved Classen coming eastward. It is Mr. Skuthorpe's opinion that the western spurs of Cairn's Range will equally prove sources of running waters, always permanent, on the western margin of the desert strip; and those western waters could have been reached by such of Leichhardt's party as may have gone westward, just as easily as Classen reached the Mulligan.

"Mr. J. R. Skuthorpe, by running up the Pitcherie Creek, the most westerly branch of the Herbert, crossed the Desert strip in somewhat less than 70 miles from the head of that creek, and now says that he cannot doubt the existence of permanent waters at no great distance from the desert's western margin. There, he thinks, we should look for relics or survivors of the lost band, and he states that he will gladly give his personal aid to any party of discovery, aiming to solve the mystery of Leichhardt's disappearance. More effective assistance the present writer ventures to say will not be easily obtained."

"My dear Mr. Du Faur,—Referring to my letter and enclosure to you from Carras, dated 25th instant, Messrs. Skuthorpe added, as somewhat corroborating the statements of the blacks on the Mulligan, by showing that a white man had for some time been amongst them, that the huts on this, for blacks, very permanent camp, were most substantially built. Each was fully of the size of an ordinary station house room, and the roofs were thatched in a very finished manner. Further, the quantity of grain (grass seed) stored for flour was, for aboriginals, prodigious, and there was proportionate mill power in the shape of hard-pounding or grinding stones. Mr. H. Skuthorpe stated that he had on one occasion seen a space covered with cut grass, in cocks (for grain), which could be compared with a Hawkesbury field of hay of considerable size. The cutting instruments were stone knives, of which, by the way, a considerable quarry has recently been found in the North-west, containing very numerous specimens, which the workmen had evidently begun upon, and then abandoned, as being of material not up to the mark.

"Of 'grain,' at one of the camps Mr. H. Skuthorpe stated that he must, upon one occasion, have seen something like a waggon load. Again, &c., &c.,

"P.S.—Please note that there were two Classens—uncle and nephew—the younger one was at my house in 1848 (sic) with Leichhardt, and must have been 25 to 28 years of age. I think both were in the party of discovery—at any rate the elder, and if so, he must have been the oldest man there—older than Leichhardt, whose brother-in-law he was.—R. B. D."

NEW SOUTH WALES PROTESTANT HALL COMPANY.

Report for the half-year ending 31st December, 1879:—

Your Directors have much pleasure in presenting another half-yearly report. On this, as on all previous occasions, we have reason to congratulate the Company on their success—this half year being more successful than any previous one. The income for the period from all sources, including shares, amounted to £586 5s. 6d., the working expenses to £317 9s. 1d., and the net profit to £190 15s. 5d. There have been 27 new shares allotted. The bank overdraft has been reduced from £568 1s. 6d. to £375 11s. 6d., being a reduction by £217 10s. The profit for the half-year is equal to 7½ per cent. per annum on the paid-up capital of the company (£5136 15s.) The profit, with the interest paid (£140 1s. 1d.), is nearly equal to 6½ per cent. per annum on the total outlay of £8811 7s. 5d. This speaks for itself, and shows that the Protestant Hall is not only a success financially, but that the business which brings about such results must be considerable, and provocative of much good from a social standpoint. The gallery has been very comfortably seated at a cost of £69 2s. This, we are sure, will commend itself to the shareholders and also to the general public, enhancing, as it must, the letting properties of the hall. The amount of cost has been placed to the furnishing account, credit having also been given for £7 1s. 7d., as proceeds of Rev. G. H. Moreton's lecture. Four directors retire in accordance with rule 60, viz., Messrs. J. D. Morris, J. C. Beare, D. Campbell, and H. Evers, each of whom are eligible for re-election. Messrs. W. T. Jacombs and A. Adams, your auditors, also retire, but are eligible for re-election.

PARRAMATTA GAS COMPANY (LIMITED).

Your directors have the pleasure of presenting the shareholders with a report for the past half-year, of a most satisfactory character, as shown by the fact that they are able to propose payment of the first dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the original capital. This dividend, together with the interest due proprietors, is payable at the office of the company, on or after 4th February next. These two items of interest and dividend give shareholders an actual yearly return of a little over 3½ per cent. for the past eight years. Since last half-yearly meeting the mortgage on the company's property has been paid off and released. The 1400 new shares issued in accordance with the resolutions passed on the 18th September, and confirmed at the special general meeting held on 18th October, have, with the exception of 121, all been taken up by existing shareholders. Twenty-five new street lamps, erected by the Corporation, were first lighted on the night of 31st December. Arrangements have also been made for lighting the railway bridges in the town. The directors being anxious of testifying their appreciation of the conduct of the affairs of the company by the secretary since dispensing with the services of the engineer, have appointed him to the position of manager in addition to that of secretary. The retiring directors are Messrs. J. W. Pass and J. Golledge, who are both eligible for re-election. Two auditors will also have to be elected for the current year. After all deductions for working expenses, discounts, and interest on borrowed money, the net profit for the half-year is—

At the meeting (Mr. R. Harper in the chair), held on 30th January, 1880, the report was received and adopted; the retiring directors re-elected, the auditors re-appointed, a vote of thanks to directors unanimously passed.

According to the Weser Zeitung the bridge over the Rhine at Wesel is the longest railway bridge on the Continent. It comprises 107 arches or openings. Of these there are four in the centre of the stream 313 feet wide, the less considerable including 35 of 60 feet each, 6 of 61 feet, 14 of 40 feet, 18 of 12 feet, 10 of 20 feet, and 20 of 30 feet. The total length of the bridge or viaduct, including the part on shore, is therefore 5320 feet, or 1665 metres.

OUR BRISBANE LETTER.

BRISBANE, JAN. 27.

The whistling of the wind, as I write, suggests a doubt whether this communication will find its way to Sydney with the usual speed and promptitude. A strong south-easter has been blowing now for two or three days, and to-day it is rising into what may, without exaggeration, be called a furious gale. Clouds of dust are flying along the streets, and a trip across the river by a ferry boat seems an almost perilous voyage. We owe our unusually cool weather to a prevalence of easterly and south-easterly winds this summer, but we are getting just a little too much of the good thing. And there is some grumbling heard about the absence of the wet weather for which January is generally remarkable. There have been plenty of clouds, and a few showers, but no heavy rain. Indeed, there are some parts of the colony—fortunately few and limited in extent—where they are talking of positive drought. A gentleman who visited Rockhampton in December, said he had seldom seen the country looking worse. It was not that any great length of dry weather had been experienced, but the green and herbage had been stimulated into such excessive growth by the unusual rainfall of the early and middle part of the year, that it was in bush phrase "soft," and had withered under the dry heat of early summer. But then Rockhampton is an exceptionally dry spot at all times. It is a great drawback to this flourishing town, that it is almost self-contained—its trade mainly supports it, and it is not buttressed by thriving agricultural settlements in the vicinity. I would not wish your readers to understand that the colony is not enjoying the "magnificent season" of which the newspapers boast. I only refer to the few exceptions which proverbially prove the rule.

If the town of Rockhampton is too concentrated for its future welfare, its concentration assists its present prosperity. There is no community in the colony which has devoted so much ability, and been so unanimous, in pushing forward their town. I think the good people of Rockhampton have acquired a little of the spirit of intensely local patriotism which distinguished the city Republics of old Italy. In other places public opinion has been swayed by party considerations, and public movements have been influenced by other than purely local interests. Not so Rockhampton. It has sent members first to one and then to the other side of the House, but in all its changes it has been

The best men in the town have never wearied of taking an active part in public affairs, and they have kept steadily the one end—local advancement—in view. And they have learned the great secret of success. They have been constant to one thing at a time, and have not frittered away their energy in attempting too much. First, they devoted themselves merely to Separation. They constituted themselves apostles of the movement, and kept alive the flagging energies of his persistent neighbours. This they did until the South conciliated them by commencing public works. The end being attained, the expedient of getting up a Separation cry was instantly abandoned. The next thing was to ensure the railway being pushed on. The townships of Springsure and Clermont, each centres of rich and thriving pastoral districts, lay north-west and south-west of Rockhampton, each at the angle of what was nearly an equilateral triangle, with the port at the apex. The people of both places were induced to join vehemently with Rockhampton in the railway agitation—a vision of a branch line, which should at a convenient distance fork like a V to reach both places, was dangled before their eyes. The trunk line was pushed on, and Rockhampton bided its time. The branches were quietly dropped, and Clermont and Springsure being no longer needed, the people of the port made a dart for a due west extension, passing through the base of the triangle. Again, Rockhampton was successful and Clermont is now idly repining at the neat manner in which it has been jockeyed by its big and enterprising port. The public works of all descriptions are being planned so as to secure to Rockhampton a direct trade with the far west, while her former associates in the railway agitation are, like her comrades in the separation movement, left to ponder on the old Scotch proverb which teaches the necessity of having a long spoon if one desires to sup kail with a certain unmentionable personage. Rockhampton is a thriving town, and the enlightened selfishness which rules it has, among minor benefits, conferred upon it the best municipal council, and the neatest streets, of any country town in the colony. All the citizens can do they have done; but they cannot prevent the climate from being exceptionally dry, and the summer heat from being more prostrating than in almost any other coast town of the colony.

Just before the end of last session one of the Ipswich group of representatives (Mr. O'Sullivan) startled the Assembly by making a vehement attack on the management of Woogaroo Lunatic Asylum. A strong personal animus against the surgeon-superintendent, Dr. Smith, was very apparent in the attack, but such a number of accusations were made that the Government could not refuse the committee of inquiry that was demanded. The committee was composed of members in whose judgment and integrity both Parliament and the country have every confidence, and their report has been published. It completely exonerates Dr. Smith from every charge made against him, and the exoneration is the more complete because the committee admit, with decent gravity, that he gave a pound or two too much for a milking cow, and that in his ignorance of agriculture he accepted an exaggerated estimate of the produce of the arable land attached to the asylum. Altogether, it is sufficiently evident that the charges were frivolous, and the appointment of a committee a needless waste of public money. The Courier, commenting on the report, apologises for its appointment after a rather curious fashion. Mr. O'Sullivan is not satisfied, however. He writes to the paper affirming that he draws a quite different conclusion from the evidence than that which the quite impartial gentlemen who elicited it have done, and insinuates that because the surgeon superintendent is a Scotchman therefore the committee have been too favourable to him. He promises to return to the charge next session, in Parliament, where, by the way, the man accused will have no opportunity of defending himself.

Bushranging will never flourish in Queensland. The inglorious fiasco made by the man who stuck up the Queensland National Bank, at the outside township of Cunamulla, will remain as a warning. He got some cash certainly, and carried it off after an arduous battle in which he was only saved from committing actual murder by accident; but he could not escape from the infuriated townspeople, who pursued and literally treed him. Sympathisers are evidently needed for successful bushranging, and they are not, I am thankful to say, to be found here. But if white men fail, there is an aboriginal desperado who is carrying on a long and successful campaign in the southern part of Wide Bay, in the broken country round Gympie. This highly "civilized" black, named Johnny Campbell, carries a double-barrelled gun, and bails up his victims in the approved style. His head-quarters are evidently in the Tutchekoi scrub, a huge tract of mountainous jungle which has hardly been penetrated by whites. Issuing from there he "sticks up" solitary wayfarers and isolated settlers' huts, but he has as yet confined himself to robbery. He works entirely by himself, and keeps only one gun with him, so the police have no means of capturing him by the treachery of his tribe. In fact, the remaining aborigines in Wide Bay have hardly any tribal distinction now—they are a mere demoralized handful, composed of odds and ends of once powerful tribes. Whites have little chance of following Campbell through the tangled recesses of the scrub, and the blacks are either unwilling or afraid of tracking a desperado whose prowess is celebrated among them. One of the smartest white troopers, a young native of the name of King, has been hunting him for weeks. This man is as skilled in bush lore as a blackfellow, is of great physical strength, and possesses indomitable pluck, and, if he can get within shooting distance of Campbell, will, I fancy, render a good account of him. The black outlaw has this great advantage over his white rivals, that, unlike them, he can find food in the scrub, and is not compelled to risk capture in order to secure supplies.

Our municipal elections are near at hand. The "burning question" is whether a paving rate shall be levied, or whether the present system of compelling individual householders to lay down asphalt in front of their property shall be continued. I think the rate will carry the day. The proposal to lay down a street tramway meets with general favour, but the absurdly premature idea of using steam motors is not generally liked.

The death of Mrs. J. R. Dickson has given a general shock to the community. The deceased lady was a fine, healthy looking woman, only 40 years of age, and she leaves a large family of thirteen children. But the cause of her death comes home to every household. In consequence of the prevalence of burglaries, it has become the custom of many families to keep loaded firearms in the house. Mrs. Dickson, going round in the early morning after a party, took up a pistol, and by accident discharged it, wounding her hand. The injury was a slight one, but tetanus supervened with fatal result. People are asking why burglars should be so successful, and the police so unfortunate in their efforts to check them.

Politics are dead yet. The Minister for Lands, Mr. Perkins, is going for a trip to Victoria, where, it is to be hoped, he will not learn the Victorian method of flavouring his beer. The Colonial Secretary, Mr. Palmer, is about to pay a visit to a station he has bought in the far north-western interior. The Divisional Boards Act will be in force next month, and by the time Mr. Palmer returns the newly formed Boards will be ready to deluge him with applications for assistance and advice.

The feud between the Roman Catholic Bishop and a portion of his flock continues, I believe, but it no longer adds a horror to the perusal of our morning Courier, the editor having set his foot down and declined further correspondence. At the sale of bridge lands, i.e., lands set apart to defray the cost of construction of the Brisbane Bridge, Bishop Quinn put in a claim for some valuable sites, on the ground that they had been set aside for his Church by the New South Wales Government. The sites were withdrawn from sale, but I do not think the bishop will get them.

We had a narrow escape from a big fire last night. Some offices in Queen-street, occupied by a printer named Muir, caught fire, but the conflagration was promptly extinguished. The editorial office of Punch was on the same floor; but, although damaged, it was not sufficiently hurt to endanger the publication of the little periodical of which we are all very proud. If the fire had got headway with such a wind blowing, the consequences might have been very serious.

AN EXCITED PUBLIC MEETING.

On Sunday, December 7, a large meeting on the land question was held at Castlerea, for which Mr. C. S. Parnell, M.P., Mr. Michael Davitt, Mr. Sullivan, and Mr. Patrick Egan arrived from Dublin by the night train. A large platform was erected in the market-square. Strict measures were adopted to keep the Government note-takers to themselves. No reporters but those known to be reporting for the newspapers were allowed on the platform, and the Government shorthand men were left to their own resources so far as accommodation was concerned. Before the meeting commenced the head constable of the district waited on Mr. Parnell and requested to be provided with two tickets for the platform for the Government reporters, stating that he had been sent by sub-inspector Newell. Mr. Parnell said the matter was in the hands of the committee, that they decided not to give any accommodation to the Government reporters, and that their view was in accordance with the feelings of the leaders of the movement, who had decided that henceforward the Government reporters were not to be so accommodated. The head-constable then asked might the shorthand writers take their notes in the open square, to which Mr. Parnell replied that of course the street was public property. Subsequently a Government reporter made a formal application, and was refused a ticket for the platform by the committee. The gentleman representing the Daily Express also applied for a ticket of admission, and was asked whether he appeared in the capacity of a reporter for that newspaper, or the Castle, or both. The reply was that he simply represented the Express and some English papers. Attention was directed to the fact that it had been stated on oath in Sligo that the Daily Express never reported Sunday meetings, and ultimately, as the applicant happened to be the gentleman subpœnaed to give evidence at Castlebar to-morrow, he was refused the ticket. Mr. Martin M'Donnell, of Dunmore, took the chair, and shortly after he had begun to speak the attention of some gentlemen on the platform was directed to the fact that two persons were standing close to the platform, and towards the edge of the crowd, and were taking notes. These two men were guarded on each side by policemen, who stood rifle in hand, and kept clear space for the notetakers. When the people on the platform were observed to be regarding this incident with some interest the body of police, who were standing in readiness at one side, observing the attention the note-takers were attracting, moved forward and surrounded the latter. Mr. J. W. Nally, of Balla, who stood in front of the platform, cried out in a very excited voice, "Make them shut up. Shove them away." The crowd cheered loudly, and cried for groans for the Government shorthand writers. Again the crowd pressed forward, and the police faced them in an irregular line, some of them appearing hardly to know what to do. They raised their rifles to their hips, and most of them levelled them at the people. The excitement of those on the platform was intense, for it seemed as if nothing could avert a collision. The chairman cried out, "Fellow-countrymen, as chairman of this meeting, I ask you, in the name of God, in respect to the chair, in respect to yourselves, and to those whom you represent, restrain yourselves." This was answered by cries of "Away with the spies!" "Why do they come here?" "Send them away from their dirty work." The chairman: "For God's sake do not hurt those men. Let every man behave himself with dignity, and whether they are reporters from the Government, or private detectives, or reporters doing what they are paid for, they will do it, and I have seen some of the greatest fellows change their colours." The police, who still pressed around the note-takers—who, by the bye, seemed more dead than alive with fright—tried to keep back the crowd, which groaned, hooted, and yelled at the unfortunate Government employees in a way that filled the air with the most deafening noise. It so happened that near where the police stood there were a good many women, and as they rushed away to escape the collision that seemed impending the constables, who all this time held their rifles as if ready to fire, struck many of the women, and one of the latter got a severe blow on the face. This had only the effect of making the people infuriated, and it seemed as if blood would be spilled. When the excitement was at its height the chairman said: "I believe it is the wish of Mr. Parnell and Mr. Davitt, in whom you have great confidence, that those men reporting there shall be allowed to stand on the platform, and I ask them to come and take their places here." Again the excitement became intense, and cries of "Down with them!" "Shut them up!" and groans filled the air, and but for the imploring appeals of the gentlemen on the platform it would seem that the Government note-takers would have had a hard time of it. The police meanwhile kept their guns levelled, and struck at every one who came near them. Mr. Parnell, addressing the crowd, said: "Listen to me, I beg of you. This is the proposition we have to make. The police have this morning, in a perfectly unauthorized way, presented their rifles at the people. Now what we propose is this—that these Government reporters be allowed to come on to the platform and sit by themselves apart from the gentlemen who are reporting for the newspapers, and that the police fall back a little from the people, remaining near to preserve order if necessary, but taking no other part in this meeting." Sub-inspector Newell here made his way through the crowd, and, advancing towards the platform, made some observations which were inaudible. Mr. Parnell begged the people to be silent, and Mr. Newell was understood to explain that the constabulary were present for the purpose of remaining quietly by to prevent breaches of the peace. That morning he sent his compliments to Mr. Egan, whom he understood to be the secretary of the meeting, to request two cards of admission for the Government reporters. He was referred to Mr. Parnell, and he sent his head-constable to him to know if he would oblige him with tickets for two of their men, sent down to take notes of the proceedings. Mr. Parnell's reply was that personally he could not accede to the request, and that the committee would not. He would now suggest that they be admitted to the platform, fearing that the crowd would molest them, and he would withdraw his men. Mr. Parnell, who at this time had left the platform and gone to where the sub-inspector stood, said: "All I require is this, that you retire your men to prevent any risk of collision between the police and the people. We will protect your reporters on our platform." Sub-Inspector Newell: "I will withdraw my men if Mr. Parnell guarantees that my two men will not be molested." The Government note-takers were then allowed on the platform and were given accommodation at the back of it, and the police withdrew to the street opposite. The meeting was afterwards addressed by Mr. Parnell and Mr. Davitt.

A German paper states that the Brunswick Court has just delivered judgment concerning the late duke's bequest of his fortune to the town of Geneva. The Court finds that the duke was legally deprived of the right of disposing of his property by virtue of the Sovereign ordonnance of his Agnati delivered on the 6th of February and 14th March, 1833, and which, published as a law in the Brunswick States, was recognized and endorsed by all the law courts, the prohibition becoming a status persona following the duke wherever he went. It therefore concludes that as the prohibition has never been removed, the duke had no more right in Switzerland than in Brunswick to bequeath his property, and that consequently his will appointing the town of Geneva his sole legatee must be considered null and void. Of course, however, the Brunswick tribunals have no jurisdiction in France or Switzerland.

IRISH FAMINE RELIEF FUND.

The Irish Famine Relief Fund Committee continues its sittings daily, and the contributions are still coming forward liberally. The amount received on Saturday amounted to no less than £2,000, of which £1,600 was the proceeds of the collections from the Roman Catholic churches in the archdiocese of Sydney, besides £50 from Windsor, £80 from Redfern, £100 from Muswellbrook, and £35 handed in by Messrs. Butler and M'Girr. Yesterday Mr. P. A. Jennings, C.M.G., presided at the meeting, and Mr. Fowler (the Mayor), and Messrs. J. Hourigan, J.P., H. E. A. Allan, J. P. Garvan, and J. Davies, M.L.A., were also present. The amount received was about £560, of which £100 was received from Young, per Watson, Brothers, £85 from Campbelltown, £60 from Armidale, £50 from Walcha, £10 10s. from Mr. B. Buchanan. A telegram was received from Morpeth, stating that £200 was being forwarded to the Central Committee. The amount remitted to Dublin was stated to be £9500, including £1000 on Friday; and the Chairman stated his intention to transmit a further sum of £2000 during the course of yesterday, which would make £11,500.

Last night a meeting was held in the Council-chamber, Marrickville, for the purpose of assisting the Irish Relief Fund. There was only a moderate attendance of about thirty persons, the chair being occupied by the Mayor, Mr. Thomas H. Alcock. There were also on the platform, Aldermen Graham and Geering and Mr. S. Cook. On the motion of the latter gentleman, seconded by Alderman Graham, it was unanimously resolved,—"That this meeting deeply sympathises with the distressed people of Ireland, and pledges itself to co-operate with the Central Committee in Sydney in order to augment the fund already started for their relief." Mr. M'Gowan then moved and Mr. Harrison seconded,—"That the following gentlemen be a committee to receive subscriptions and hand them to his Worship the Mayor of Marrickville, by whom they will be forwarded to the treasurer of the Sydney Committee,—namely, Messrs. J. L. Park, Hindman, M'Gowan, Despointes, and Harrison," and the resolution was unanimously adopted. A letter was read from Mr. G. Halligan, in which that gentleman apologized for his absence, and said, "I need hardly say that my sympathy will be with you, and that nothing but the present state of my health could prevent me from being present to represent Marrickville in this noble undertaking." A sum of £34 was collected in the room, and the proceedings closed with the usual vote of thanks to the chairman.

for exportation, have purchased extensive MILLS in BRUGES, BELGIUM, which they have fitted up with English machinery of great power and most approved construction. This advantage combined with the fact of their having on the spot the largest market for the finest Chicory Root in the world, enables them to supply the manufactured article on better terms than any other English house in the trade.

Steam Mills: Brick-lane and Wentworth-street, London; and Bruges, Belgium.

HUNGARY WATER.—PIESSE and LUBIN.
The name and reputation of Hungary Water was first established, as tradition relates, from benefit derived from a Bath containing it by one of the Queens of Hungary, at the age of 95. The GENUINE is now only sold in England by the lineal descendants of the Inventor. Independent of the above quality, which renders it so remarkable, Hungary Water is an exquisite perfume; it raises and strengthens the spirits by its superiative refreshing qualities. Health has often been restored, when life and death trembled in the balance, by the mere sprinkling of it in the sick chamber. 2s. 6d. per Bottle, or 14s. per Case, of Six Bottles.
To be obtained of all fashionable Perfumers and Druggists throughout the world, and of PIESSE and LUBIN, 2, New Bond-street, London W. Bureau, during the Exhibition, No. 131, Pitt-street, Sydney.

KEATING'S INSECT POWDER.—Bugs, Fleas, Moths, Beetles, and all other insects are destroyed by Keating's Insect Destroying Powder, which is quite harmless to domestic animals. In exterminating beetles the success of this powder is extraordinary, and no one need be troubled by those pests. It is perfectly clean in application. Ask for, and take no other than "Keating's Powder," as imitations are noxious, and fail in giving satisfaction. Sold by all Chemists, in tins, 1s and 2s 6d each.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Continued Youth.—To seem and feel only require regularity and attention.—Any defect can be corrected by Holloway's Purifying Pills, which expel those morbid matters that produce inflammation, pain, fever, debility, and decay. Sold at 233, Oxford-street, W.C., London, and all druggists.
